Aid formula is obsolete: Cronin

by STEVE BROWN

Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Calling the present state school aid formula obsolete, Illinois School Supt. Joseph Cronin Thursday called for a new formula to help school districts facing lower state payments because of skyrocketing tax assessments.

Cronin's remarks to Illinois Board of Education meeting here promise to set off a new round of legislative debate on the question of state aid to education.

Lawmakers had expected to fully finance the present formula in fiscal 1979, meeting the state goal of giving local school districts one half of their operating funds.

Cronin, however, said that new tax assessments, both in the suburbs and rural areas, have increased local tax payments to schools and triggered an automatic reduction in the amount of money paid by the state.

"We must turn our attention to the issues of formula revisions and property tax reductions," Cronin said. Without the revisions 60 per cent of the school districts in Illinois will get less state aid next year, he said.

CENTRAL TO THE issue is the constitutional pledge by the state to pay for 50 per cent of education. Cronin noted the assessment changes will raise local financing more than 50 per cent, "contrary to the intention of the Illinois General Assembly, Constitutional Convention and Illinois Board of Education."

During an impromptu press conference, Cronin said he did not know how much more it would cost the state to revise the formula and protect districts hit by rising tax assessments.

The formula now is based on a 1973 figure of $1,260 per student as the amount needed to provide quality education. Cronin advocated raising that figure to $1,400 or $1,500.

CRONIN SAID his proposal does not conflict with an education financing commission proposal to set annual per pupil cost. Ideally, the figure should be linked to inflation, he said.

Besides calling for formula revisions, Cronin said the state will have to seriously study a proposal to allow local school districts to levy their own income tax to help offset spiraling property taxes.

CRONIN'S STATEMENT predicted the assessment will force 25 per cent of the school districts in Illinois to refund overpayments, but later he admitted that trend has already developed.

The Daily Herald reported in August that several Northwest suburban school districts were forced into refunds this year. Officials in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 were overpaid $827,189 according to state records. Less substantial refunds were made by Palatine Township Dist. 15, Wheeling Township Dist. 21, and High School Dists. 207 and 214.

The Illinois Board of Education is scheduled to take up the issue of revising the school aid formula in December.

Schools cite suburb woes in state aid

Area school officials Thursday agreed with Illinois School Supt. Joseph Cronin that changes in the school state aid formula must be made to stop state aid from draining out of the suburbs.

Under the present state aid formula, which attempts to equalize money available for schools in rich and poor school districts, school districts lose state aid as their property assessments go up.

In the Northwest suburbs, where taxpayers are paying more to schools because of huge quadrennial reassessments, many school districts aren't benefiting from those local taxes.

BECAUSE OF THE present state aid formula, those school districts are losing a dollar or more in state aid for each dollar a resident pays in taxes.

The money that is taken away from the Northwest suburbs and other districts where property assessments are high is given to districts, many of them downstate, where property assessments are lower and do not generate as much money for schools.

Wheeling Township Dist. 21 has been one of the victims of lowered state aid because of increases in its assessed valuation, Supt. Ken Gill

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK of Chicago, 1 First National Plaza, is missing $1 million in cash taken sometime during the Columbus Day weekend. The FBI is investigating the theft, the largest in the city since 1974 when burglars took $4.3 million from Purolator Security, Inc.

Million in cash stolen

A million in cash has mysteriously vanished from a vault in the First National Bank of Chicago and authorities say it might have been taken by a "sneak thief" during the Columbus Day weekend.

Bank officials disclosed news of the missing money Thursday, although they had known of its disappearance since Tuesday night when the discrepancy was discovered.

The FBI, working closely with the bank's security personnel, is investigating the disappearance "as an embezzlement right now," Agent George Mandich of the Chicago FBI office said Thursday. Agents were at the bank early Thursday, but would release nothing about their findings.

The $1 million, apparently in several parcels, was taken from a locked four-by-seven-foot green cart bearing the numbers 7-12, Homer J. Holland, senior vice president, said.

THE CART in the First National Bank was reportedly locked in a steel cage inside the main vault two floors below ground level, Holland said. Investigators found no sign of tampering with the cart.

FBI agents said the missing cash, in three undisclosed denominations, could have been carried out by "a sneak thief" although they have little evidence to go on.

Holland said the money was accounted for before the bank closed Friday night. Bank officials discovered the money was missing when the chief teller could not balance his books late Tuesday. But Wednesday, auditors were summoned and "confirmed the assumption that we have a cash loss of $1 million," Holland said.

He admitted it was "possible" a miscount had been made, but "we went through all the cash transactions and double-checked and we must work on the assumption that we have

Two gunboats fired on a U.S. yacht off Vietnam, rammed the vessel and then apparently seized all three Americans aboard, U.S. officials said Thursday. July 4th fest site OKd despite protest

Despite complaints from residents about noise and traffic congestion, Arlington Heights Park District commissioners Thursday night voted to allow next year's Fourth of July festival to remain at Recreation Park.

The board also decided to reconsider its previous approval of construction of a bandshell at the park, 500 E. Miner St., with money donated by the festival committee.

About 25 residents argued for two hours with several members of the committee over use of the park.

"Everyone near the park has been complaining," said John Rokosz, 203 N. Haddow Ave. "A bandshell is an undesirable use of park land.

"DURING THE festival last year traffic counts showed that traffic was nearly double normal, and we were plagued by noise for 12 hours at a stretch."

Marilyn Macko, a member of the village environmental control commission, agreed that a bandshell would not be good for the area.

"We have serious reservations about the use of a bandshell at Recreation Park," she said. "The problem of noise interference with people's lifestyles exists. It may injure the neighborhood."

Commissioners said they will ask village officials if a survey on the desirability and location of a bandshell can be included in the next village newsletter.

THE BOARD PRES. Jacqueline Gruenewald said spending park district money on a survey is "ludicrous."

Dwight Walton, chairman of the festival committee, said $20,000 in cash and services has been donated towards the estimated $60,000 needed to build a bandshell.

"We came to Recreation Park because of its central location and trees," he said. "The festival has been more highly successful there than at any of the previous locations."

The Fourth of July celebration has been held at Recreation Park for the past two years. Before that it was held at Forest View and Hersey high schools and other locations."

AFTER LISTENING to the debate, Comr. Lloyd W. Meyer said, "I resent people who come out here and say 'I don't want progress, I'm against everything.' If you're going to have progress you can't please everyone."

Comr. Robert Rohleder requested that members of the Central Citizens Coalition, a homeowners association formed last summer to deal with problems including the festival and bandshell, meet with festival committee members to help plan next year's Fourth of July program.

Suburb political clout coming of age: official

by KURT BAER

Chicago suburbs will be the new dominant force in Illinois politics, wielding more clout than Chicago or all of Downstate Illinois, a special assistant to Democratic Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson told a Chicago conference Thursday.

Speaking on "The Democratic Party in the suburbs after Daley," Lawrence Hansen, Stevenson's Chicago aide, predicted that within a quarter of a century:

- The suburbs' representation in the Illinois General Assembly and Congress certainly will be larger than Chicago's.
- Apportionment of the Cook County Board will be evenly divided between the city and suburban townships, although control of the board as well as countywide offices likely will remain in the hands of Democrats.
- A "monumental struggle" may develop between Chicago and suburban townships for control of the powerful Democratic Central Committee.
- The Republican Party, "fearing its principal center of support is eroding," will begin formidable counter offensives in the suburbs.
- Young and ambitious Democrats will leave the city in greater numbers in search of new positions in the suburbs.

HANSEN OUTLINED the reasons for the late Mayor Richard J. Daley's well-known indifference to the suburbs and the mayor's late and largely unsuccessful attempts to counter burgeoning suburban clout.

The future shape of politics, Hansen said, may depend on whether "once ignored and

Bakalis' uphill campaign paved with family support

Patricia and Erin skipped school Thursday, but today they'll have good excuses to give their teachers.

Pat, 14, and Erin, 9, spent Thursday flying around the state with their father, Comptroller Michael Bakalis, as he announced he will run for governor.

Bakalis ended three weeks of uncertainty in his Downers Grove household, and set his sights on unseating Gov. James R. Thompson.

His daughters and his wife, Desi, flinched a little at his Springfield press conference when he painted, with broad strokes, his campaign strategy, and acknowledged he is an underdog.

Bakalis' gubernatorial campaign, he said, will be the first in which his whole family will take an active part.

BUT ON THEIR first day on the campaign trail, "We weren't nervous. We were hot," Pat said, tugging at her knit sweater.

Mrs. Bakalis said her daughters were really too young to accompany their father when the former schoolteacher launched his career as a political unknown in the 1970 race for superintendent of public instruction.

The family was only slightly older last year, when Bakalis beat another incumbent Republican, Comptroller George Lindberg.

"We have done it before, but I am sure this is going to be more hectic" Desi said.

As Bakalis read his four-page statement at stops in Springfield, Chicago, Marion and East St. Louis, the family members smiled a few times at each other and at reporters but remained silent.

THE CANDIDATES children admitted their school friends have not said too much about their father's plans.

"A few have talked about it, but not many," said Pat, a freshman at Downer's Grove North High School. Erin conceded her fifth grade classmates at the Belle Aire Grade School did not mention the gubernatorial race nearly as often as political observers who have let Bakalis' candidancy dominate their conversations in

Carter pleads for support of energy plan

WASHIIGTON (UPI) — President Carter Thursday accused the oil companies of "potential war profiteering in the impending energy crisis" and said "the biggest rip-off in history" would occur unless Congress passes his energy program.

Appealing for public suport to save his proposals from extinction in the Senate, Carter implied that profit-lusting oil companies are blocking his legislative efforts to deal with looming, "inevitable" oil and gas shortages.

Opening a counter-attack in a televised news conference, he also blamed himself for not fighting hard enough for his own faltering proposals, and the public for guzzling energy at a record pace oblivious to "the seriousness of the crisis."

HE SUGGESTED he would veto any bill that scraps too much of his conservation plan, and said that, in that event, he would "seriously" consider gasoline rationing and other enforced-conservation measures.

In another news conference statement, Carter said he intends to propose a tax cut and it probably would take effect next year if the economy appears in need of stimulation.

It was the first time Carter has said he planned to propose a tax cut. He did not say how large a cut he would ask, but sources have said he would probably call for a reduction of $22 billion — with about two-thirds of the benefits going to individual taxpayers and the rest to businesses.

But Carter's main message was a harsh attack on the oil industry. In effect, he renewed his allegation that the Senate is too cowed by the oil lobby to pass tough, tax-based conservation laws.

"Back in April , when our national energy policy was presented to Congress and the people, I said that . . . this was 'the moral equivalent of war,' " Carter said in an introductory statement. "I haven't changed my mind. In fact, the seriousness of the energy crisis is even more acute than it was then . . . "

HE SAID ENERGY prices would continue to rise "drastically" because of worldwide shortages and the actions of foreign cartels.

Asking, "who will profit from these prices and to what degree?" Carter said his proposed energy package — approved in the main by the House, but now being dismantled in the Senate — "is fair and well balanced. It insures that the American people are not robbed.

"It also insures that the oil companies get enough incentive to insure adequate exploration and production.

"But the oil companies apparently want it all, and we are talking about enormous amounts of money . . . Our proposals would give the oil companies the highest prices for oil in all the world, but still they want more."

CARTER'S TACTIC seemed to be to portray the oil lobby — not the senators — as the villain of the situation, so as to leave time and room for appeal to the legislators.

Just hours after Carter made a public plea for strong energy legislation, the Senate Finance Committee tentatively completed action on a tax bill that has little resemblance to the White House plan.

The Senate version of the energy tax package includes a tax credit that would pay businesses, hospitals and other groups for half the cost of converting from oil or gas to more plentiful fuels.

In a surprise burst of activity, the committee also voted for a new energy development corporation similar to one suggested by former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and for a series of special tax breaks for new or so-called exotic energy sources.

A final vote was postponed until today, and the bill still is subject to change.

U.S. sailboat and crew seized near Vietnam

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Two gunboats fired on a U.S. yacht off Vietnam, rammed the vessel and then apparently seized all three Americans aboard in the first such incident since the U.S. freighter Mayaguez was captured in 1975, U.S. officials said Thursday.

"Our vessel is being rammed," the crew of the 39-foot sailboat Brillig reported in a final radio message sent Wednesday on an emergency frequency. That was the last word from the woman and two men aboard.

The crew was identified as Cornelia Anne Dellenbaugh, 28, the boat's owner, whose family lives in Florida; Charles Affel, 30, a sailmaker from Philadelphia; and Leland Dickerman, in his late 20s, of Flagstaff, Ariz.

FRIENDS WHO monitored their last radio messages said the crew reported two armed fishing boats opened fire on the Brillig in Indochinese waters.

"Our vessel is being molested by armed vessels," the crew radioed before they reported the ramming.

U.S. monitors in Hawaii said the Brillig crew hauled down their sails and awaited a boarding party. There were no further messages.

Observers in Bangkok said the incident apparently occurred in waters claimed by both Vietnam and Cambodia. They said the attacking boats could be naval vessels of either Communist regime or even a pirate ship.

U.S. EMBASSY sources said the United States has contacted Vietnamese diplomats in Paris to ask whether Hanoi has any information on the crew and the Brillig, named for a line from "Alice in Wonderland."

An official of Thai Airways International in Bangkok said a jet flying from Hong Kong to Thailand late Thursday monitored a signal from the boat's automatic radio for 11 minutes.

In the last previous attack on a U.S. vessel in the area, a Cambodian naval boat seized the cargo ship Mayaguez in the Gulf of Thailand on May 12, 1975. On May 14, President Ford sent 250 Marines to recapture the vessel in a battle on a nearby island and the Communists later released the crew of 39.

In its final series of radio transmissions, the Brillig — which was en route form Thailand to Brunei — said it was closer than 12 miles to an island off Vietnam's coast.

Affel's father, Herman, president of Computer Consoles Inc. of Rochester, N.Y., told UPI all three crew members had been sailing through the Far East "for nearly three years." A friend in Stratford, Conn., said they were sightseeing, delivering boats in some countries and "collecting specimen fish."

Carter energy plan criticized at conference

President Carter's energy program would cost Americans more than deregulation of natural gas and oil prices and do nothing to prevent shortages of those products, speakers at the Midwest Economic Conference said Thursday.

Ending federal price regulation is the only way to prevent shortages because it will make new exploration for fuels economically feasible, said Wallace W. Wilson, vice president of the energy and mineral resources division at Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co.

"Carter's plan aims at conservation" based on the assumption there is only a limited amount of fuel left in this country, Wilson said.

"There is finite fuel at any given price, particularly at a regulated price," he said.

"THE CARTER ENERGY program is not a program designed to produce energy. His energy program is a tax program designed to allow the President to redistribute income to groups which he considers worthy and which supported him in the last election," said U.S. Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio.

If the President's plan had been accepted by Congress as originally proposed, it would have meant $39 billion in additional federal taxes on business and consumers by 1981, Brown said. The version approved by the House will raise $22 billion in federal taxes by 1981, he said.

"By 1981, American taxpayers would have paid $399 per person in tax dollars under the administration proposal, or $299 under the House proposal," Brown said.

Carter's call for industry to convert from using oil to coal will cost business an additional $180 billion by 1983, Brown said.

"Will this investment be productive investment? Hardly," he said.

Arab hijackers skyhopping toward unknown place

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A hijacked West German jet with 91 persons aboard, including 11 beauty queens, refueled in the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Bahrain early Friday and then resumed its odyssey of Middle East airports.

Reports from Bahrain monitored in Beirut said the Lufthansa Airlines Boeing 737, which had been barred from three other Middle East airports, took off at 5:27 a.m. (9:27 p.m. CDT Thursday).

The jet, under the command of four Arab terrorists, touched down only about an hour before it would have run out of fuel, according to estimates by Lufthhansa officials in Damascus.

Lebanon, Syria and Iraq closed their international airports and forbade the plane to land as it wandered through the Middle East. It then headed toward Kuwait but turned southeastward and landed in Bahrain.

At a refueling stop earlier in Cyprus, the terrorists had threatened to blow up the plane and their hostages unless they got more fuel for another takeoff. They also demanded "the release of all their comrades held in West German jails," a Larnaca, Cyprus, airport spokesman said.

The hijackers, two men and two women who said they were from a previously unknown terrorist band called the "Tiger group" commandeered the jet over the French Riviera during a flight from Palma de Mallorca in the Mediterranean to Frankfurt and stopped at Rome enroute to Cyprus.

The hijackers' spokesman "Mahmoud," who was described by authorities in Rome as a nervous and sometimes incomprehensible man, said his terrorist group "will fight all imperialist organizations in the world."

3 Americans given medicine Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — The 1977 Nobel Medicine Prize was awarded Thursday to three American doctors for their "brilliant . . . formidable" hormone research and for brain studies that could help mankind understand the link between body and soul.

Half of the $145,000 award went to Dr. Rosalyn Yalow, 56, of the Veteran's Administration Hospital in New York City, for her work in diabetes research — only the second woman to win the award since it was established in 1901. She had cooked breakfast and reported to her laboratory at 5 a.m. before learning of the honor.

The other share of the award was divided between Dr. Roger Guillemin, 53, of the Salk Institute in San Diego, Calif., and Dr. Andrew V. Schally, 51, of the Veteran's Administration Hospital in New Orleans, La., for independent research that has changed modern science's understanding of brain function.

THE ONLY OTHER woman to win the medicine prize was Gerty Theresa Cori, who shared the award in 1947.

Dr. Yalow said she was stunned by the news, that it would take her a couple of days to calm down and that her discoveries were almost accidental, growing out of something else.

Dr. Guillemin said he "did not mind" being awakened at 4 a.m. to be told of the award and said he was pleasantly surprised.

Dr. Schally said he was deeply honored that the award was "a victory for the Veteran's Administration systems, Tulane University, the state and the city."

Lahti criticized by Harper board

Robert E. Lahti, Harper College president, was criticized Thursday night for failing to alert the board of trustees to a 3-month-old memo outlining concerns by administrators about their contracts.

Board member Natalie Weber said she thought the board in June had directed Lahti to reassure administrators about the terms of their contracts, which were rewritten this year to clarify some provisions.

But she said the board just received a July 18 memo, not from Lahti, but from former Harper Personnel Director Wilfred Von Mayer, itemizing 18 concerns about the contract.

"It's unfortunate that the board once again is forced to assume a duty that clearly is the responsibility of the president of the college," Mrs. Weber said. "This is just one more reason why this board member for one has lost all confidence in the president of the college."

LAHTI DEFENDED his actions, saying the memo was written while he was on vacation and reminding the board that he had warned them the change in contract terms would cause alarm among administrators.

Mrs. Weber said her main concern about the memo was that the board had pledged to maintain good relationships with all constituencies at Harper. She said she felt ill will was simmering while the board easily could have cleared up many of the administrators' concerns if it had known about them.

Mrs. Weber's reprimand was the most personal attack on Lahti in a series of similar criticisms throughout the past few months.

At the July board meeting, board member Joan Klussmann attacked the Harper administration "for distortions and political games." At the same meeting, board member David Tomcheck charged the board had been "bamboozled" because college officials distributed more than $14,000 in bonuses to administrators when only $10,000 had been authorized. That overpyament later was rectified.

Thompson and Bakalis trade critical remarks

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. James R. Thompson and Comptroller Michael Bakalis both pledged a clean, issue-oriented campaign Thursday but wasted no time in criticizing each other with sharply worded remarks.

Thompson followed Bakalis' early morning announcement with hastily called press conferences here and in Chicago. He said the plane flights between Chicago and Springfield were paid by campaign funds.

The governor charged that if Bakalis had been in his place during the last nine months, "the State of Illinois would be broke or our people paying higher taxes."

Bakalis described Thompson as heading an administration that "is seeking to alienate no one and does nothing."

HE SAID HE questions whether the state needs a governor with his eyes set on the White House and blamed the current administration for increased property tax assessments.

Thompson told reporters his administration had worked for a balanced budget.

The governor said he decided to react but Bakalis because "it would not be wise to stand silent, while he issues a four-page statement that does not square with the facts."

Bakalis seemed pleased that Thompson, rated as a heavy favorite in the race, chose to acknowledge his entry in such an overt manner.

CLEARLY THOMPSON'S casual style and presidential aspirations will be underlying themes in the Bakalis campaign.

The governor is likely to needle the Democrats with criticisms like those raised by State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, in June, who also questioned the accuracy of Bakalis' spending plans for education.

Bakalis has never won a majority of the Northwest suburbs during his two statewide campaigns. In 1970, when he unseated incumbent Ray Page as superintendent for public instruction he narrowly lost this area, the six-township area that includes Maine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Hanover, Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

In 1976, he again unseated an incumbent, George Lindberg for the comptroller's post, but lost in this area by nearly a 2-1 margin.

Bakalis' campaign a family affair recent weeks.

"I guess there will be more talk about it now," Pat said.

The youngsters and their mother were not asked and did not volunteer their positions on the Equal Rights Amendment, state aide to education or Thompson's stewardship, they left the answering to the candidate.

THEY MIGHT have remembered the other long and generally uphill campaigns of the past, stretching from the announcement day to an election night.

They all agreed the campaign will be great and their man will win, but not without a long fight.

But win or lose it is not an everyday occurence and Thursday's missed classes are not a monumental loss.

"I guess you can say it is a special kind of civics lesson," Pat said.

Thompson claims he returned funds

Gov. James R. Thompson announced Thursday he has refunded more than $15,300 in campaign contributions from persons linked to federal criminal casts. The refunds were made after disclosures by The Daily Herald that Thompson accepted the contributions from contractors who were granted immunity in several cases, one which started while Thompson was serving as U.S. Attorney. Although Thompson made the refund pledge more than a month ago, the actual refunds were delayed while Gary Starkmen, the governor's legal counsel, reviewed campaign records and federal court cases to determine if any other contributions fell into the category.

Simon considering senate bid

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said Thursday he will decide within about a week whether to seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, but that his present inclination is to stay in the House. "I do think that (Sen. Charles M.) Percy, R-Ill., is not invincible. I think he can be defeated," Simon said.

Limit on Cronin's car use asked

The Illinois Board of Education introduced a recommendation Thursday to limit State School Supt. Joseph Cronin's use of charter airplanes and state-owned cars. A report, which will be voted on next month, would prohibit Cronin from using the car on personal trips and require he seek permission of Board Chairman Jack Witkowsky before taking the car out of the state for any reason. The recommendations, which were made by board member Donald E. Truitt of Palatine, came after reports Cronin in August had taken his state-owned car to New Hampshire for a vacation.

Carbon monoxide affects students

Twenty five pupils and teachers of Bryn Mawr Elementary School on the South Side were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes during school hours Thursday, but none suffered serious effects, authorities said. The victims were taken to Jackson Park and South Shore hospitals, where officials said they would be treated and released. The fumes backed up into a classroom from a faulty furnace, officials said. The school was evacuated.

Suburban schools may face strike

An Illinois education spokesman said Thursday teacher union negotiations are not progressing well in at least two suburban Chicago school districts, paving the way for possible strike actions. IEA spokesman George King said the likelihood of a strike is strongest in Chicago Ridge Elementary School District 127½ and in Wheaton-Warrenville District 200. Chicago Ridge teachers recently authorized a strike vote and Wheaton teachers met Thursday night to consider the school board's latest contract proposal.

King also said contracts have not been signed in 18 other Chicago area school districts represented by the IEA.

A VERY HAPPY LYNN TIMMINS Thursday was crowned Buffalo Grove High School's homecoming queen. Still to come during the week long celebration is a football game against Arlington High School at noon Saturday and a "You Light Up My Life" dance at 8 p.m. Saturday in the cafeteria.

U.S. asked for funds by Dist. 21

Wheeling Township Dist. 21 is trying to obtain federal funds to provide jobs for unemployed teachers.

The Dist. 21 Board of Education Thursday night approved an application for $128,826 through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act to hire 25 teacher-interns beginning Nov. 14.

If the funding request is approved by the Cook County Board, the district will be the first Northwest suburban school system to use federal money to help out-of-work teachers.

The number of teaching jobs in suburban areas has been shrinking because of declining enrollments and the need to close schools. The Dist. 21 project is designed to help recent college graduates who have not been able to find work and former teachers who want to return to the field.

TO QUALIFY FOR employment in this program, applicants must be residents of suburban Cook County who have been out of work for at least 30 days. They also must be college graduates with valid teaching certificates.

As teacher-interns, the employes would earn $600 a month assisting classroom teachers. The district would provide in-service training for the interns and help them find full-time employment as teachers.

Unlike teacher aides currently used in Dist. 21, the employes would be eligible to take over classes, Supt. Kenneth Gill, said. Teacher aides, who are paid with local funds, cannot instruct students.

Dist. 21 now uses CETA funds to hire temporary employes for custodial and miaintenance work. Several other villages and school districts in this area use CETA money to create temporary public service jobs.

GILL SAID THE program is "very sensible. Rather than welfare, give these people jobs and give them experience."

The district has notified college placement offices and previous job applicants of the possible openings, Gill said. "We've been getting calls from all over the state already," he said Thursday.

Associate Supt. John Barger said he has been assured the County Board will give the application a favorable hearing. "We have assurance it will have a good chance of going through," he said.

Students seek roots in Italian classes

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

For many students, a foreign language is something they study because they think they'll need it to get into college.

For students in Forest View High School's Italian classes, however, foreign language study is more than a ticket to college — it's a link with their past.

Most of the 85 students in the school's four Italian classes are third generation Italians who don't know much about their backgrounds, but want to learn more, teacher Bita Cale said.

"The first generation never spoke Italian to their children because Italians then were looked down upon as a lower class and they wanted them to be American," she said. "Now Italians have gained status and the grandchildren want to learn their language and culture."

LIKE FRESHMAN Angela Campobasso of Des Plaines, many of the students hear their grandparents speaking Italian and want to be able to understand what they're saying.

It was a parent, however, and not students who pushed to have Forest View offer Italian, something no other schools in High School Dist. 214 do.

The mother of eight, Ola Giolli of Des Plaines thought she was missing something because her children didn't have an opportunity to learn their parents' language.

"There are so many children of Italian heritage in our area I didn't see why there should just be French, German and Spanish in the school," she said.

IN THE SPRING of 1976, Mrs. Giolli called school administrators to see whether Italian could be added to the curriculum and found they were considering it also. They asked her to write a letter and said they'd see what could be done. By the following September Forest View had beginning Italian classes.

"Just a phone call and a letter in triplicate, that's how easy it was," Mrs. Giolli said.

Now only a year after the classes began the school has 60 students enrolled in beginning Italian, 25 enrolled in Italian II and 10 in an Italian club. By next year, Ms. Cale said she hopes there will be an Italian III class.

"The kids are very interested and want to be in the class for themselves," she said.

Man hit by car after paying fine

A 26-year-old Aurora man who was in Arlington Heights Thursday morning to pay a traffic fine ran into some more bad luck.

While Thomas J. Connoloy was walking south across Sigwalt Street to his car after paying the ticket in the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, he was struck by a car driven by Reba L. Kelly, 47, of 932 Mallard Ct., Palatine.

Connoloy was taken to Northwest Community Hospital by Arlington Heights paramedics. He was treated for cuts and bruises and released.

Mrs. Kelly was turning onto Sigwalt Street from Arlington Heights Road when the accident occurred, police said. She was not ticketed.

Adventures of your Garbageman

An Angle on "Missed Pick-ups"

A customer, after reading our ad about the Log Sheets our drivers keep to list all addresses where cans are not available, poses this question:

"How about a lazy driver just writing down the address, thus saving himself the work of serving that particular home?"

A reasonable question. But there's an easy answer. Beyond the fact that no driver would do that (he'd be in trouble soon) it's actually much less trouble to serve the home than it is to record the address.

Consider What Happens: No cans in sight. Maybe they're in a different place (people do that, sometimes). So he looks around. Nope, no cans. "Now, where's my pen, and the Log Sheet?" Off with the gloves. And the address? Shucks, not on the garage. So, off to the front of the house for the address, and back to the truck. By now, he's spent more time than clearing the cans would have taken.

That's why he'd rather give the service than do the "clerical work" on his Log Sheet.

State aid woes cited in suburbs said.

"For every dollar we get in assessed valuation (local taxes), we lose a dollar in state aid," Gill said.

"The resource equalizer is not actually doing what it said it was going to do," he said. "It was supposed to reduce the amount of money spent on the local level and increase the money spent on the state level."

Sup. Frank Whiteley of Palatine Township Dist. 15 also said a new formula would greatly benefit his district.

UNDER THE PRESENT formula, Dist. 15 stands to lose $1.3 to $1.6 million of the $5.6 million it currently receives in state aid because of this year's quadrennial reassessment combined with declining enrollment, Whitely said.

If those districts that experienced a quadrennial reassessment "could be held at the same (state aid) level as the previous year, that would be great," he said.

In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where the quadrennial reassessment is due next year, officials have forecast a $100 million jump in the district's tax base.

That would generate an additional $1.6 million in local taxes, but could mean a $1.9 million loss in state aid, said Marvin Lapicola, Dist. 54 business manager.

"You lose more than you gain," Lapicola said, adding that the district would "lose 20 cents on the dollar as the (state aid) formula now stands."

ALTHOUGH THEY believe a change in the formula is needed, officials like Donald Kennev, business manager for High School Dist. 207, and Supt. Edward Grodsky of Prospect Heights Dist. 23 said they doubt the state can come up with the money for a new formula providing more state aid for schools.

Grodsky suggested that instead of providing additional state aid, the state stop taking away as much money as it does for each child a district loses. That would help districts losing state aid because of declining enrollment, he said.

Local officials were wary of Cronin's suggestion to finance the schools through a local income tax rather than the present property tax. Arthur Perry, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 business manager, said levying, collecting and distributing an income tax would require a "horrendous" administrative cost.

Dist. 21's Gill said a local income tax for schools would only allow wealthy areas to get more money while poor areas would lose out.

"We've got an income tax at the state level," Gill said. "Let's use that. The state should collect the money and appropriate it to give equity to every kid in the state."

'Peanut Brigade' chomps on chicken

A sentimental Jimmy Carter hosted a chicken barbecue Thursday night for some 500 members of the "Peanut Brigade" — fellow Georgians who helped in his presidential campaign — and told them: "I'm not making an announcement about the future — but don't throw away those suitcases." It was a time for nostalgia for the President and he let the Georgians know it. "These are my closest friends in all the world," he said as he walked about the White House south lawn hugging and kissing the people he called his "kinfolk." The Georgians, including former Budget Director Bert Lance, had come by train and plane to celebrate Carter's victory and the memories of the moments they had shared on the campaign trail.

Money will flow to needy

Congress acted Thursday to continue for two more weeks the pay of thousands of government workers and benefits for millions of aged, disabled and needy Americans — all of which were threatened by a dispute over abortions. The House and Senate each passed by voice vote a resolution which keeps money flowing to meet payrolls and continue programs of the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare, along with several smaller agencies, through the end of this month. That gives senators and House members until then to settle the abortion issue, or further extend the temporary pay measure. The completed resolution was taken to the White House where President Carter signed it Thursday evening without comment.

'No one can ever hurt them again'

Three girls aged 8 to 10, brutally stabbed to death over the weekend, were buried in white, flower-covered coffins Thursday as hundreds of wet-eyed mourners looked on in Glen Burnie, Md. Half an hour earlier, a 16-year-old neighbor, Stuart L. Kreiner, was formally charged with three counts of first-degree murder and ordered held without bond. Hundreds of friends and neighbors joined relatives of the three slain schoolmates — Debbie Hogan, 10; her sister Terry Hogan, 8; and Anne Brzeszkiewicz, 8 — at a funeral mass offered by The Rev. Joseph Connolly of Holy Trinity Catholic Church. "No one can ever hurt them again," murmured a teary-eyed mourner.

Claytor backs canal treaties

Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor said Thursday rejection of the Panama Canal treaties could put the United States alone in hostile Western Hemisphere and "our naval defense posture would be immeasurably weakened." He said an unfriendly population in Panama would be the biggest possible threat to keeping the canal open. Claytor made the remarks in a speech prepared for a Navy Day dinner in Chicago and the text was released in Washington. "To come right down to nuts and bolts," he said, "an increasingly hostile population will pose a greater threat to a 51-mile canal, with complex and easily sabotaged locks and dams, than any other internal or external danger we can think of."

Korea 'significant testimony' set

Leon Jaworski said Thursday the House Ethics Committee will call about a dozen Korean and American witnesses for "significant testimony" at next week's initial hearings on alleged Korean influence-buying in Congress. But Jaworski, the panel's special counsel, said he still could not name any of the prospective witnesses and he declined to predict whether the first phase of public hearings — set to begin Wednesday — would produce testimony implicating any members of Congress.

Suburb political clout predicted abused suburban Democrats take the initiative to redefine their relationship to the Democracy of Chicago, or leave such matters exclusively to Chicago and its recent emigres."

"The mayor's death seems to have emancipated some of the organization's younger leaders who for years have longingly viewed the suburbs as an ideal, if not the only remaining outlet, for their own ambitions.

"THEY HAVE RECOGNIZED for some time that the Democratic grass was becoming greener and more lush on the suburban side of the fence but felt constrained while the mayor was living not to pretend that their futures were bound up with the city — a city in which there was no more room for some of them to move up and prosper politically."

Speaking at a University of Illinois Chicago Circle campus conference devoted to the late Mayor Daley, Hansen said that during the first half of Daley's political life, there simply was no need for Democrats to be concerned with Chicago's suburbs or the "country towns" as the suburbs were called.

In the 1950s and 1960s as the suburbs grew, Daley's attention was focused on expanding and strengthening his Chicago political power base so as to include the votes of the growing numbers of black and other minority city residents.

In the last years of his life, Daley initiated two actions that illustrated his growing frustration with the suburbs, Hansen said.

In the spring of 1976, Daley issued an order that all city employes would be required to live in Chicago or lose their job.

"The publicly stated rationale for the residency policy, of course, did not allude to politics or to the suburbs. But the policy was thoroughly political," Hansen said.

Area officials miffed on lack of RTA notice

The Regional Transportation Authority wants to buy $12 million in new bus equipment for the suburbs, but suburban officials aren't happy.

The reason — the public hearing on the grant application was conducted in downtown Chicago Thursday and no one invited Northwest suburban officials.

Bob Fialkowski, spokesman for the Northwest Municipal Conference, Thursday told the RTA that area officials aren't happy with the situation.

NOTING THAT THE NOTICE of the hearing was published in the Chicago newspapers, Fialkowski said those papers do not represent general circulation in the suburbs.

He presented the RTA with the copy of a telegram sent by the conference Wednesday night that stated "We go on record to protest your 10/13/77 public hearing being held in downtown Chicago and not being announced to suburban municipalities. RTA is a public agency and liable for public meeting law."

The conference also is refusing to endorse any RTA grant application until a full audit has been done on the six-county agency. Conference members said they want to know where the RTA spends its money and won't back further expenditures without audit information.

THE PUBLIC HEARING outlined RTA's plans to purchase 100 full size buses, primarily to replace over-aged buses now being used in the suburbs. The buses, costing $90,500 each, are 35 feet long and air conditioned.

Also included in the grant application are 25 mini buses to be used for suburban dial-a-bus or subscription bus projects. Each comes equiped with a wheelchair lift and costs $42,300.

New fare boxes, two-way radios and three maintenance vehicles are on the grant application, as are 2,000 bus stop signs and $83,000 of office equipment.

The RTA is asking the federal government for $9.8 million for the project, with the state providing $1.6 million. RTA's portion of the project is $847,560.

If the grant is approved, the equipment is expected to arrive in about 1½ years.

Disobeying orders among 15 Hennessy charges

by RUTH MUGALIAN

Misuse of Rolling Meadows employes and vehicles, and failure to carry out orders of the city manager are among the charges that led to the firing of John Hennessy, The Daily Herald has learned.

Hennessy was in charge of two departments, public works and building and zoning.

Hennessy, who was fired Sept. 13 by City Mgr. Thomas Palmer, will defend himself against 15 charges at a closed hearing Nov. 9 before the city council. He already has been granted two continuances for the hearing because of impending knee surgery.

The reasons for the firing were given to the city council in a closed meeting two weeks ago but aldermen have refused to discuss them.

THE CHARGES INCLUDE several instances of Hennessy using city employes to perform personal services for him on city time. They include:

- Having city employes help move his furniture and personal possessions.
- Having city employes install electrical outlets and sockets in his home.
- Requesting a city employe to go grocery shopping and prepare a meal for Hennessy and his wife at their home.
- Requesting a city employe to deliver a city car to his home for his personal use in violation of the city's motor vehicle policy.

In addition, Hennessy requested expense money for a trip to take a physical examination and said City Atty. Donald Rose had instructed him to do so. The allegation states Rose never instructed Hennessy to request the money.

OTHER CHARGES against Hennessy include:

- Failure to attend a hearing June 8 at Palmer's request to consider installation of car washes by two city service station owners.
- Failure to prevent occupancy of the Crossroads of Commerce building on Algonquin Road, though he allegedly knew construction did not comply with city ordinances.

John Hennessy

- Locking two adults and five Boy Scouts in the public works building and refusing to open the door when requested on June 2. Police had to be called.

Most of the other charges against Hennessy deal with his failure to properly administer the public works department, particularly during the city's water problems last summer.

He is accused of failing to recommend and implement water conservation methods and policy before the summer began. He also is charged with failing to prepare an adequate report on the calling of a total outdoor water ban that lasted from the end of May to the end of July.

The city council did not establish a summertime water policy until the end of June, one month after the ban was called. Aldermen had complained they did not have adequate information from the city staff to decide on a policy.

AFTER THE WATER ban was called May 28, the council waited two weeks for a report on the reasons and the condition of the water system. Palmer had said the report was delayed because more details were needed.

When the report was issued it consisted of a one-page memo from Hennessy describing the condition of each of the city's six wells in one sentence. Aldermen and Mayor Roland J. Meyer again complained of the scanty information and said they didn't understand why it took two weeks to prepare.

Hennessy at that time told The Daily Herald that the report was ready two days after he called the ban, but said "they were second guessing me" for the two following weeks. He declined to say who second-guessed him.

HENNESSY WAS TO have explained the water situation to the council the day after the report was issued, but left work that week on a three-week unexplained medical leave of absence. City Engineer James Muldowney spoke to the council instead.

The water ban lasted two months because of a disabled pump in one of the city's wells. The city has a spare, but it, too, was damaged. One of the charges against Hennessy is that he failed to repair the spare well pump and failed to provide an explanation for not doing so.

Hennessy also has been accused of failing to prepare a report on the city's garbage collection system, and failing to instruct his staff to do the work.

AT THE SUGGESTION of Ald. Raymond Neuckranz, 1st, last April the city was to have studied the feasibility of dropping its own refuse collection system and contracting a private company. Neuckranz said he thought the city might be able to save money on truck maintenance and employe salaries.

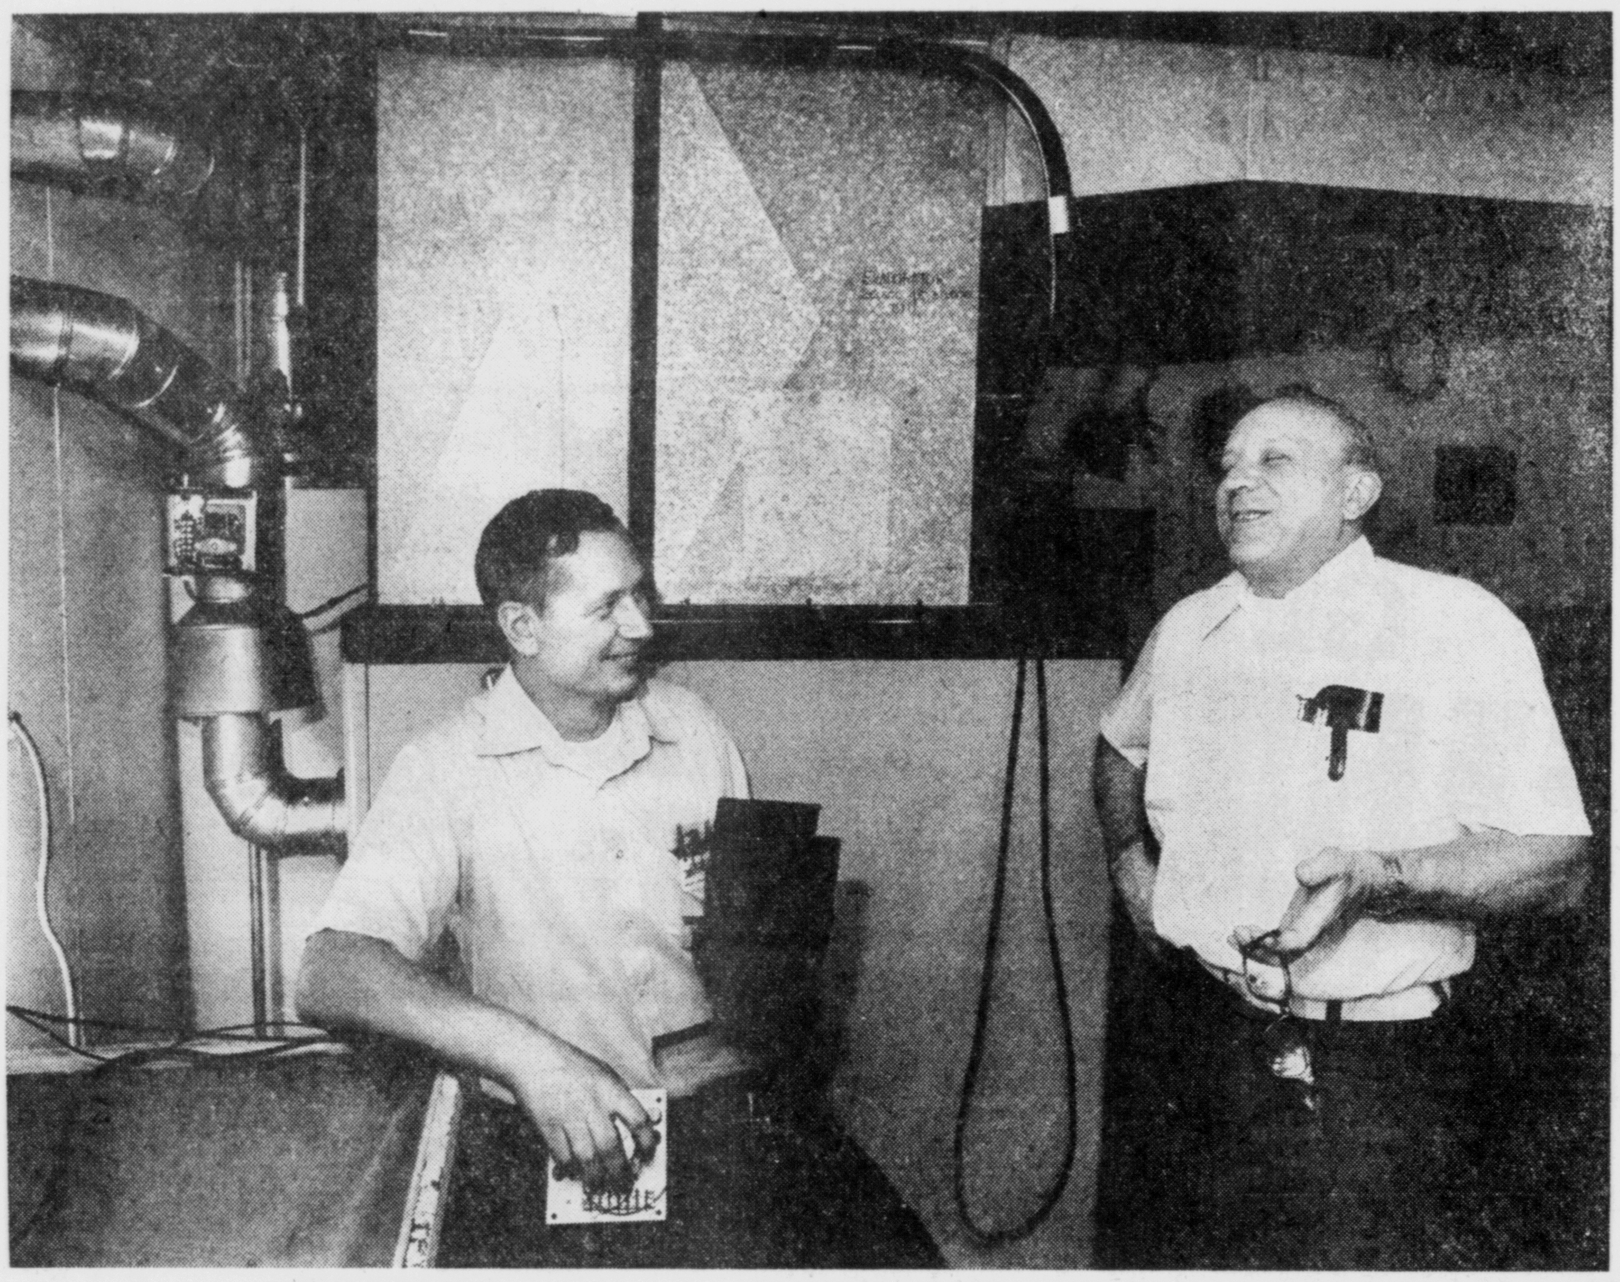
Palmer issued a memo to Hennessy the week of July 25 that said he expected some preliminary information within three weeks. City officials then kept delaying the date they expected to have the information. They are now shooting for the end of October.

The report was to have included comparative prices of private refuse companies and refuse services for neighboring towns. The report became increasingly important last summer as the city's 9-year-old garbage trucks began to wear out and the city needed to make a decision about replacing them or abandoning them.

HENNESSY HAS DECLINED to comment on his firing. His attorney, Thomas McGuire, said the charges against his client resulted from a "gross misunderstanding" and said he was certain Hennessy could refute them.

Hennessy has requested a closed hearing to defend himself and try to regain his $27,170-a-year job. He currently is receiving no severance pay.

Palmer, under Rolling Meadows' strong city manager government, has the authority to hire and fire all department heads. But because Hennessy was appointed by Meyer, Palmer cannot fire him without cause until 1979 when Meyer's term expires. Because Hennessy chose to fight the dismissal, the city council has to approve Palmer's action.



CO-INVENTORS OF a patented automatic damper, James Stanek, left, of Arlington Heights and Roy Rank of Palatine, say their invention will save homeowners 20 per cent on gas bills. Stanek holds the invention which sells for $200.

Damper may cut heating bills 20%

by NANCY GOTLER

It doesn't look like much, but the invention Roy Rank and James Stanek have devised could become a common household item and help turn around the energy crisis.

The Arlington Heights residents spent a year experimenting before perfecting their newly patented automatic damper that they estimate will save homeowners at least 20 per cent of their heating bills.

"The principle we used isn't new, but the method is," siad Rank, 51, of 136 S. Bothwell St., Palatine. "It really is very simple."

THE DEVICE IS made of black metal and a wired circuit board. It fits onto an existing stovepipe off a gas furnace. It eliminates the open stack that draws heated air to the outside, said Stanek, 40, of 627 N. Beverly Ave., Arlington Heights.

When the temperature in the house falls below the thermostat setting, the damper opens and the burner turns on, Stanek said.

When the desired temperature is reached, the burner turns off and the damper closes, keeping the already heated air from escaping and making a more efficient system.

All fumes are exhausted before the damper shuts, so there is no danger of trapping gases in the house, he said.

"With very little electrical knowlegde a homeowner could install one in half an hour," Stanek said.

HE AND RANK have combined 50 years of experience in the heating and cooling business. They met seven years ago at Harper College, where Rank teaches air-conditioning and heating and Stanke teaches refrigeration.

After deciding to do something to save energy, they began working nights and weekends in Stanke's workshop basement with experimental models.

It takes each man several hours of work to make one unit and word of mouth orders already have them working to the limit.

THEY PLAN TO SELL each model for $200 and Rank said the unit will pay for itself within three years in lower heating bills.

Both men say the components used are "the best" and that the units are durable, and will last "almost forever."

"Once we get the literature out on it we probably will have trouble keeping up with orders," Rank said. "Then we'll quit our jobs, get a shop and do this full time. We'll be busy, but it will be a good kind of busy to be."

Called pastor opens church Sunday

by DAVE IBATA

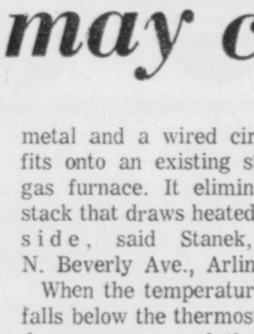
Dale Finke says he heard the calling to begin a new church in Arlington Heights while still a seminary student.

So Finke, still 26 hours short of his master's of divinity degree, Sunday will open the doors of his first congregation: Friendship Baptist Church, sponsored by the Southern Baptist Convention.

Friendship church will be the first Sourthern Baptist congregation in Arlington Heights. It will start out modestly — with between 40 and 50 persons attending Sunday's service in choir room 260 at Arlington High School, he says.

DURING ITS first month, the new church will have a fellowship hour at 10 a.m., followed by worship at 11 a.m. Sunday school classes will begin at 10 a.m. Nov. 16.

"I saw a tremendous spiritual need," says Finke, 27, who until this summer was a student at Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, Tex. "There are a lot of lost people here in the Chicago area."



Dale Finke

The Chicago Metropolitan Baptist Assn. placed Finke in Arlington Heights last summer when he spent 10 weeks nurturing Bible studies and backyard Bible clubs.

By mid-July, Finke decided to establish a church one year ahead of his original plans to receive his master's degree first.

He says he canvassed Arlington Heights neighborhoods, and saw a need for a new congregation.

"ACCORDING TO my survey, only half the people in Arlington Heights go to church regularly," he says.

Finke sought out and received financial support from the Illinois Baptist Assn., churches and individuals, he says. The First Baptist Church in Clarendon Hills is sponsoring his efforts.

Finke estimates he will need to raise between $10,000 and $12,000 a year to get Friendship going.

Meanwhile, Finke says he plans to finish his degree by taking courses at Chicago-area divinity schools. He says he expects to be ordained as a pastor in November, long before he receives his degree.

FINKE HAS come a long way from his earlier career as an aerospace engineer. He recieved a bachelor's degree from Northwestern University, Evanston, and went to work for McDonnell-Douglas in St. Louis, Mo.

While working in St. Louis, he became a born-again Christian. Shortly thereafter, he became restless, he says.

"I was working as an engineer and I wasn't all that happy working there, so I was looking for something else," Finke says. "But the thing that made me feel led toward Christian service — rather, one of the things — was a need for Christian workers."

Finke left his job and enrolled in a seminary. During a visit to his home in west suburban Lombard in 1975 he says he recognized the need for Christian workers in the Chicago metropolitan area.

By the summer of 1976 he says he found himself in Arlington Heights, where the Chicago Metropolitan Baptist Assn. had tried for 10 years to start a congregation, he says. This summer the assoication agreed to have him undertake that project.

As a foundling congregation, Friendship church first must find persons willing to make up a core of members — many of whom likely will be born-again Christians.

"I'm looking for the unchurched people," Finke says.

'Wills needed if money's to go where you want it'

If you want to give property to anyone but a relative after you die, you better say so in writing. And that means preparing a will.

Attorney Joseph Platt gave that advice to 12 persons attending a seminar on retirement at the Elk Grove Township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., this week.

Wills aren't just for persons with a lot of money who expect disputes among relatives. They are for anyone contemplating retirement or concerned about having a legal document for distributing their assets.

PLATT SAID wills are simple documents, but that it's wise to have an attorney draw one up to make sure it says what you want it to say.

'It doesn't pay to go to a stationery store and write your own will," he said.

Wills generally cost anywhere from $35 to $75 to draw up. A lawyer also will make sure two witnesses sign the document, and avoid technical errors like identifying assets incorrectly.

If you don't have a will when you die, your assets automatically go to your wife or descendents. People who want to avoid giving money to no-good sons or daughters will need a will to do it, Platt said.

Although inheritance taxes can be as high as 70 per cent, they're much less for beneficiaries of small estates, Platt said. A lawyer's fee for handling a case in probate court is often 4 per cent of the total, he said.

It is wise to have a relative act as executor of a will. Otherwise a bank will do the job at a higher price, Platt said.

The seminar Wednesday was one of seven being held by the township to prepare elderly persons for retirement. A seminar tonight will deal with finance. Social Security, health and work will be discussed at future seminars.

6 towns could lose funds under new traffic plan

Arlington Heights could save as much as $69,280 and Des Plaines could lose as much as $11,042 under a new state formula on the cost of traffic signal maintenance.

Analysis of the formula by the Northwest Municipal conference shows that as many as six Northwest suburbs could lose money under the plan. Those suburbs include Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows.

The municipal conference has been pushing for a change in the formula, saying it is unfair for local communities to absorb the cost of signals on state roads.

WILLIAM MUHLENFELD, executive director of the conference, said the formula is a step in the right direction, but does not go far enough. "It by no means answers the concerns we had. It does not mean the state assumes full responsibility for traffic signal maintenance on state roads," he said.

The formula, announced last month by Illinois Dept. of Transportation Sec. John Kramer, will not be formalized until January. At that time it will be determined how much the state will contribute to the maintenance of major intersections that do not involve two state roads.

The size of the savings and losses depends on how much the state decides to contribute. Assuming the state pays only 10 per cent of the cost at major regional installations, the big losers include Des Plaines at $11,042, Elk Grove Village at $5,764, Palatine at $4,420, Prospect Heights at $3,840, Wheeling at $2,135 and Rolling Meadows at $620.

Several communities would save money, including Arlington Heights at $40,120, Mount Prospect at $12,810, Hoffman Estates at $6,600 and Hanover Park at $2,205. Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg would save smaller amounts.

If the state share goes up to 40 per cent, the savings increase and the losses decrease. For example, Arlington Heights would save $69,280 and Des Plaines would lose only $8,792.

Under the formula, the state would maintain intersections involving two state roads, but local communities would pay energy costs on all intersections. Energy costs now range from $500 to $850 per installation.

Action needed in mistaken raid

What happened to the Chah Shen family March 6, 1973 cannot be easily dismissed.

The Shens were the victims of a terrible mistake by the Elk Grove Village Police Department. Living in an apartment in Elk Grove Village at the time, they were awakened at 1:05 a.m. by what they thought were burglars.

It was instead Elk Grove Village policemen in the process of making a drug bust. The police were in the wrong apartment.

Mrs. Shen was injured when police scuffled with her and her husband after they knocked down the apartment door to get inside. She ironically screamed for police, not knowing it was policemen who were roughing her up.

All these facts surfaced recently when Elk Grove Village authorized payment to the Shens to settle a lawsuit out of court. The Shens, who originally sought $120,000 in damages, settled for $2,500. They say they're satisfied.

It's quite a story, and obviously those involved in the incident are sorry for their mistake.

They ought to be.

The last thing we want to be is vindictive, but the incident deserves close scrutiny.

Elk Grove police department and village officials took no disciplinary action in the case. The police chief did not reprimand the officers involved. In fact, the police and fire commission, the body appointed to judge disciplinary cases, knew nothing of the incident. No official of the community offered an apology to the family.

It may be too late now to take disciplinary action against the officers, but it is not too late for police department officials to acknowledge the severity of the error.

Deputy Police Chief William Kohnke, when asked about the lack of disciplinary action by the department, retorted: "What are you going to do. It was an honest mistake." He said police officers should not be disciplined in such cases.

Kohnke is wrong in his assertion. Swift action, including a detailed investigation and police and fire commission hearings, should have taken place. The case is much too serious to shrug off as a fluke.

The department and the taxpayers in Elk Grove Village got off easy. They're lucky Shen wasn't out to make a bundle on the lawsuit, because he probably could have.

Shen just wanted to make a point, and we're glad he did.

Squirrels need nutty aid

Some say there are too many nuts in Washington D.C.

If there are, the squirrels can't find them.

It seems the squirrels have fallen on hard times in the nation's capital, particularly in Lafayette Park across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House. A nut shortage in the park has resulted in hoards of hungry squirrels chewing up the shrubbery.

Washington bureaucrats, not noted for compassion in such circumstances, came up with a typical solution — deport the squirrels. As a result, hundreds of furry beasties are being trapped and sent to the suburbs.

All this is occurring directly across the street from the home of the nation's most renowned peanut grower. And, while Pres. Jimmy Carter has turned over operation of his peanut business to a trust while in office, it would seem that maybe he could provide some squirrel-aid.

If he can't, we can hope at least that the squirrels enjoy their new suburban homes.

An old time editor worked with instinct for scandal

Jim Bishop

His bald head came up out of the green eyeshade like a hard boiled egg. He was Frank Carson, city editor. His desk was jammed against one occupied by the assistant city editor and the photo assignment editor.

Carson ran New York, or what was bad about it. He was old. His features sagged to the chin. He had 25 reporters and 15 photographers. The News gave him from 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. to get a newspaper out.

He ran the place like a cuckolded husband. Carson was not loud, but his critical whisper could freeze a reporter's future. He had five men on a copy desk, but he read his own copy, cutting it with a black crayon. The only way a reporter could get more than a page and a paragraph in type would be to shoot the mayor and write an eyewitness account.

THE CRITICS TOLD Carson his readers were a million gumchewers in the subway. He took dead aim on them. His pink edition was yellow journalism. All of Carson's scandals "rocked Broadway" or "stunned city hall."

He and his assistant, Nichols, were off-duty drunks. Carson drank to forget what he was doing. Nichols, a hyperkinetic, drank to peel his nervous system off the ceiling. Nichols always forgot where he parked his car.

I was sent to look for it. It was always in Greenwich Village. A copy boy draws strange assignments. Six Italian boys killed a subway collector for $5.70 in coins. Carson played it on page one right through the electric chair.

When a society boy married an Indian maiden and made her do nude war dances around his bed, Carson demanded pictures. Also a diary by the maiden who turned out to be more black than red. She had no diary, so one of Frank's reporters wrote one for her.

HE SPOKE WITH HIS head down. Sometimes he glanced sidewards at a big wall clock. He had reporters who could write, and some who couldn't. Those who couldn't were experts at getting a story and retelling it to a rewrite man. Some had worked so long with the police that they protected the cops and took their pay from the newspaper.

One knew all the divorce lawyers. He got juicy stories, but he had to work in the name and address of the counsel. Carson and Nichols got story tips from readers on the phones. Some were worth an assignment; others emerged from tilted heads and forked tongues.

Every day Carson's city room started slowly and worked itself into a spasm. Near press time, he was snatching paragraphs from typewriters one at a time. He fired Jack Miley three times for falling asleep on his typewriter carriage and hired him four times.

At 5:30 p.m. there was a bedlam of typewriters, shouting reporters and running boys. The makeup editor sat next to Frank with his dummy sheets, planning what stories would appear on which page and how long each would be.

CARSON WORKED BY instinct. He spiked stories mercilessly, read galleys like ticker tape, and ordered last minute photos into the paper even though they were still wet from the dark room.

He insisted that his women reporters think and write as callously as men. He smoked cigarettes which left dark exclamation points on his wooden desk. At 6:30 p.m. there was silence. No one moved. Carson glanced at his array of watchdogs, standing, sitting, leaning.

He never said anyone did a good job because no one ever told him he did one. He took the eyeshade off and split the silence with it. For one day, he had finished turning over the rocks of New York. He went to the men's room, perhaps to throw up.

NO ONE LEFT WITHOUT a good night. A pointed index finger, a flat wave, and someone went home. He waited for the first editions of the competition with his head down on his arms. It griped his guts to be beaten to a story. He licked his thumb and turned pages. Sometimes he grunted when the night editor showed up.

The big city room was dirty with copy paper and empty coffee cartons and wire copy. The night side drifted in. Far below the big presses whined in protest and raced in thunder.

A copy boy brought Carson a pink edition. He put his coat on slowly. The paper was under his armpit. He went out into the night. He shuffled along, barely lifting his feet, his head down.

He was just one more old man among a million of them . . .

Generation gap shapes future politics

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

In Washington

Remember the "generation gap" of the 1960s? That phrase was so overworked in books, magazines and newspapers that it was rapidly discredited as a meaningless cliche.

The concept is worth reviving, however, because it's a central element in a compelling new scenario for the future of politics and government in this country, during the 1980s and beyond.

The far-sighted analysis, in the form of a detailed memo now being privately circulated in Washington, is the work of Carl Wagner, a talented political organizer and a veteran of three presidential campaigns at the age of 32.

WAGNER'S CANDIDATES, all Democrats, lost in 1968 and 1972, but last year he coordinated election day activities on behalf of President Carter's campaign organization. He currently is director of campaigns for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Wagner's thesis begins with a demographic observation: For the first time in the history of this country, there are two — rather than one — dominant age groupings within the nation's electorate.

One group, composed of young adults, is clustered around the age of 30. That generation underwent an exceptionally intense and searing introduction to public affairs — a spate of assassinations, the tumultuous civil rights revolution, the war in Vietnam and the Watergate scandals.

The other group is composed of those over 65 years of age. Its politics were shaped, in great measure, by a series of equally profound events — The Great Depression, the New Deal. Word War II and the "cold war."

BY THE mid-1980s, Wagner points out, each of those population clusters will number more than 40 million, thus dominating electoral politics while embracing very different philosophies, concepts and values.

Many members of the older group are convinced, for example, that the remedy for virtually all of our domestic social ills is direct intervention of the federal government, invariably accompanied by infursions of large amounts of money.

The younger group, the children of the post-World War II "baby boom," has challenged many of the basic precepts of its elders. Wagner points out that its "negative consensus" includes those basic elements:

• "Direct government intervention as a problem-solving mechanism may not work."

• Cold war polarization does not effectively address the goal of avoiding a nuclear holocast."

• "Material consumption for its own sake should not be the only expressed purpose of our political and social systems."

THE YOUNGER generation has been exceptionally successful in convincing others to accept many of its goals — including racial and sexual equality, vastly increased emphasis on consumer and environmental concerns and a shift in emphasis from "big government" to more manageable community-oriented units.

"But if the goals advocated by this new generation have been vindicated, the assumptions leading to these goals remain unarticulated for purposes of presenting a plan for the future," Wagner notes.

On the other hand, he points out that although many of "the goals of the older generation have been set aside, its political assumptions . . . remain the only clarified benchmarks for public policy and political leadership." Although the sheer size of the older generation guarantees that it will continue to influence public affairs, the age of its members almost certainly precludes the possibility that it will be the source of future national leaders.

In the coming decades, those leaders will come from the younger group — and they will face the difficult challenge of building a consensus broad enough to embrace two generations with profoundly disparate concepts of government and politics.

Teichert hit for his stand

I read first with disgust and finally anger the article in the October 6 Daily Herald reporting that former Mayor Teichert and former Trustees Rhea and Link are seeking an injunction to prevent the current Mount Prospect Village Board from paying a portion of the legal expenses incurred by members of the Woodview Civic Association in pursuing their legal rights after village government had abandoned them. In taking this action, Teichert, Rhea and Link state that they are worried about the precedent that would be established if the village were to reimburse this group of citizens. I wish that Mr. Teichert had exhibited equal concern for precedent and the public purse when they so enthusiastically employed the village's home rule powers to sell $3.5 million worth of library bonds.

With regard to the establishment of precedent, I can only ask what is wrong with establishing a precedent when it is a good one. In the Brickman matter, the appellate court said clearly that Mount Prospect village government had not acted responsibly and had erred seriously in not fully protecting the interests of a group of its citizens when it failed to properly notify them of a hearing regarding the Brickman consent decree. This failure to fully protect the rights of the northeast citizens' group created an injustice which cried out for resolution. The action by the current village board to partially reimburse members of the Woodview Civic Association recognizes the fact that a previous board had made a serious error, that a group of citizens had been damaged, and that the village had a moral obligation to reimburse them, at least in part, for expenses they had incurred in following a course of action which should have been taken by the village. The precedent established by the recent board action is that village government accepts responsibility for mistakes it has made in the past and seeks to make right that which it has damaged. I think it is a sound precedent based on justice for all and one that should be fully supported by the community. To do less would perpetuate and reinforce the attitude of large numbers of Mount Prospect residents that their village government is more concerned with legal technicalities than the pursuit of justice and equity.

In his letter to the village board concerning the suit, Mr. Teichert asked that "political overtones (or undercurrents) be avoided." In view of the fact that the suit was brought by three former village officials leads one to speculate as to just who it is that is playing the political game.

'No underpass'

Do we really want an underpass in Arlington Heights? Why can't the trains stop further west of town, thereby leaving Arlington Heights Road open to the "through" traffic? The underpass would not help village residents, but just drivers on their way through town. By our silence, we are approving this monstrosity in the heart of town.

We are getting a lot of things we don't really need or want — a new police station, larger library, golf course with luxury clubhouse and now this proposed underpass. Maybe this is why the "general residential community" has not been heard from . . . what good does it do? Our village fathers seem to go ahead with their plans no matter what anyone else says or does.

The Village of Arlington Heights will be subsidizing an improvement to move traffic right through town, not to help them get to town to shop. We could use our tax money to improve the general maintenance in our town. How long has it been since your parkway trees were trimmed, or cracked and broken sidewalks replaced?

Come on, taxpayers, it's time you had your say. Attend the village board meeting on Monday.

Carter off to promising beginning through flexibility, political skill

by GODFREY SPERLING JR.

Rightly or wrongly Jimmy Carter came to Washington with the reputation of being a man who dug in his heels on issues and simply would not give any ground. It was said that this was the kind of Governor of Georgia he was — and that his adamant, unbending tendencies would quickly get him into trouble as President.

Some observers, citing long-time familiarity with Carter the politican, were forecasting that he would soon have a confrontation with Congress out of which would come a polarization of the two sides and the consequent inability of the President to deal with the major problems of the day.

Well, whether or not Carter ever was that kind of Governor (and his top aides say this is not true), he certainly isn't proving to be that kind of President. A confrontation with Congress did threaten. But Carter moved fast to improve his communications and his personal relations with congressional leaders.

AND THEN, WITH Congress and others with whom he must deal harmoniously if he is to make progress for the country, Carter showed himself to be most conciliatory, most accomodating.

For example: To get strategic arms talks going with the Soviets, he has softened his voice on the human rights issue; and to move forward on the whole foreign affairs front, and particularly in the Mideast. Carter has pulled back from talking so openly about his bargaining positions.

The President has been conciliatory with labor, with big business, with the blacks, and with the liberals. And, most noticeably, Carter did recede in the end from his all-out support of Bert Lance (with the divulgence of some of Lance's past that the President had never known anything about) to the point where he decided to accept his resignation.

But the President is getting little or no credit for willingness to pull back from a hard position in order to resolve a problem. Instead there now are critics in Washington and around the United States who are beginning to murmur that here is a President who gives in too quickly, who is too soft. Where is his backbone? some are asking.

ALL OF WHICH GOES to prove that no matter what a president does he can't do it right — at least with some people.

The President's trade ambassador, Robert Strauss, doubtless was emitting some political hyperbole when he told reporters over breakfast the other day that "the President continues to demonstrate the flexibility that will make him one of the greatest presidents we've ever had."

Yet those who have known Strauss over the years are aware that he is much too canny to utter words that he can't live with later. Strauss probably was using a political superlative to say this: that he believes Carter is showing the kind of political skill and acumen that just might enable him to get some very important things done and, hence, become a very good President.

Further, interviews with Democratic and Republican leaders, both in Washington and around the United States, show that the politician chieftains of both sides continue to hold a healthy respect for the way Carter is handling himself.

IF THERE IS ANY bitterness about the President, it comes from those on the far left who, even more than the ultraconservatives, are never satisfied with less than a full loaf. Some of these liberals are saying that Carter is too much of a politician — and that he is turning out to be something less than a humanitarian.

Some leaders on the right are very much opposed to some Carter positions — particularly on the Panama Canal treaties. But they don't appear to be too bitter. And often they couple their complaints with comments like this: we kind of like the guy. Or: we like what he is saying about balancing the budget.

So a President who is showing that he can learn from the past and from his own mistakes carries on — always good humored, always poised, always willing to talk to his critics and his friends as he tries to find his way through the pitfalls on all sides.

Will he, as some say, end up pleasing no one by trying to please everybody? Or will he end up by doing enough for everybody to retain the support necessary to govern effectively? And, having done that, will he make the important decisions necessary to carry the nation forward?

These are the questions people are asking of a President who, at minimum, seems to be off to a promising beginning.

Engel tells candidacy for committeeman's post

Sheldon Engel, 36, of 3219 N. Volz Dr. West, Arlington Heights, has announced his candidacy for Democratic committeeman of Wheeling Township.

Engel, a Loop attorney, is the first declared challenger to incumbent committeeman Don Norman.

"I think I can be a cohesive candidate that will bring together various Democratic factions so that there can be two effective political organizations in the suburbs. I think the competition would be healthy," said Engel, who has been a Democratic precinct captain in the township for four years.

His candidacy was endorsed by Nathaniel P. Leighton, who ran unsuccessfully against Norman in 1974.

"Sheldon Engel has the energy and enthusiasm of youth, the education of a lawyer and the experience as a regular Democratic organization precinct captain who has successfully delivered his precincts in past elections.

"He believe we cannot only recover from the passivity of the past several years, but that by unifying the total membership of the party, we can even gain the respect of the Cook County (Democratic) committee which doesn't even know we exist," said Leighton in endorsing Engel.

Engel is a seven-year resident of Arlington Heights, a graduate of the University of Illinois and Northwestern University Law School. He is married and has three children.

Midwest task forces are needed to attract industry, meeting told

Midwest regional task forces should be set up to attract new industry to the region and prevent industries in the seven-state area from moving away.

"We need to formalize the preliminary efforts of this meeting with the establishment of regional task forces. They would create blueprints, not more studies," Harvey C. Jacobs, editor of the Indianapolis News, told the closing session Thursday of the Midwest Economic Growth Conference in Chicago.

"We need a strategy on priorities of the private sector, a policy for the Midwest. We have the resources that can be marshaled and much more effectively promoted," Neil F. Hartigan, president of the Real Estate Research Corp. and former lieutenant governor of Illinois, said.

IN SUMMING UP the two-day conference, Lester W. Brann Jr., president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, said the following things must be done to keep the Midwest an economically prosperous area:

- Programs of economic education of the public must be launched.
- Regional reviews of government regulations should be undertaken to see which rules overlap, or keep business away from a particular area.
- Money spent on research and development both in the public and private sector must be increased to keep pace with needs for new technology.
- A regional talent pool should be created to aid in the developement areas within the Midwest.
- Incentives should be offered to business to locate or stay in the Midwest.
- Cities must be redeveloped.

Redeveloping decaying central city areas is a simpler job than many think, said Dudley P. Kircher, president of the Dayton (Ohio) Area Chamber of Commerce and vice president of the Dayton Development Council.

Dayton has attracted more than $150 million in new investment to its downtown area during the 1970s with another $50 million in the planning stages, he said.

Dayton's business community decided to form a partnership with local government to keep business in Dayton while attracting new development, Kircher said.

BUT BEN-CHIEH LIU, an economist with the Midwest Research Institute in Kansas City, warned business and government officials not to try to attract industries which would do more harm than good to their regions.

"Every desirable growth pattern also combines with some undesirable things," such as air and water pollution, Liu said. "To stress economic growth alone probably would not be a very good idea."

The findings of the two-day conferenne, sponsored by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, the Great Lakes Area Development Council and 118 Midwestern state and local chambers of commerce will be forwarded to the White House which has scheduled an Economic Growth Conference in January.

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — A good many of your are paying higher property taxes than you have to. Local assessments often show a crazy-quilt pattern, with some homeowners paying too little and others paying too much.

The middle classes, in particular, are likely to be overtaxed in relation to their fellow townsmen in the upper-middle brackets. Wealthier people tend to know more about how the tax system works, and can tell more easily if their own assessment is too high.

Every town and city has an appeals board, made up of local residents, who listen to citizens who think they've been overassessed. If the board agrees, it can order your taxes to be cut.

The key to winning a property-tax case is good preparation. You have to know what the grounds for a lower assessment are, and be able to show that they apply to you. The appeals board generally sits once a year — call the town hall to find out when the next date comes up. Then start pulling your evidence together. Below are the four ways you can get your tax lowered, and how to go about proving them:

- The assessor made a mistake. This is a far more common situation than people realize, and can be an open and shut case for a lower assessment.

The assessor may have overestimated the market value of your home. To be sure of this, it's important to know how houses are assessed in your city. Some areas base their assessment on current market values (which is what the house would sell for today); others such as the Northwest suburbs use a fraction of the market value, which is more confusing.

FOR EXAMPLE, assume that you have a $50,000 house and — unknown to you — your town assesses at 50 per cent of the market value. If you get an assessment slip "valuing" your home at $30,000 you may think you've got a lucky break. But in fact, that valuation is too high — 50 per cent of $50,000 would be only $25,000. Homeowners who don't know whether their town assesses at full value or a percentage of the value can't tell whether they're paying too much.

If your house is overvalued, get a statement from two real estate brokers or a local appraiser to that effect. If the description is wrong, bring dimensions and photographs to the hearing.

Business briefs

Carter promises steel industry aid

President Carter assured steel executives Thursday the government will take "actions and decisions" to help their troubled industry and eliminate unfair foreign competition. Industry and labor leaders were pleased by Carter's promises. "We had a unanimity of thoughts," said U.S. Steel chairman Edgar Speer following a four-hour White House meeting. "I am rather optimistic." Carter and his top aides met with a large group of steel company executives, union leaders, congressmen, environmentalists, consumers and industrial steel users to discuss what he described as the industry's "long-standing and chronic" problems. He promised a "comprehensive" solution to the problems — some tax relief, even-handed enforcement of environmental safeguards and a crackdown on foreign producers who illegally sell their steel at a loss in the United States. Carter, who attended the session for 45 minutes, nonetheless ruled out imposing new quotas on foreign steel imports. He insisted he does not intend to "erect trade barriers around our country." Steel industry employment dropped by more than 13,000 persons in August because of surging steel imports in a period of static domestic demand, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute. Imports accounted for 19.4 per cent of the nation's domestic steel supply in August and averaged about 18.4 per cent of the apparent steel supply during the four-month period beginning in May.

Money supply up dramatically

The country's basic money supply soared by $4.9 billion this week to $334.5 billion, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported. Commercial and industrial loans at major New York City banks rose $144 million in comparison with a rise of $292 million last week. Short-term interest rates were mostly higher, but the key rate on federal fund, the uncommitted reserves banks lend each other, was unchanged at an average of 6.41 per cent. The average three-month Treasury bill rate climbed to 6.22 per cent from 5.98 per cent and the average rate on 90- to 119-day dealer placed commercial paper loans moved up to 6.43 per cent from 6.31 per cent.

House kills consumer bill

The House Thursday killed a proposal to give defrauded consumers a limited right to go to court with class action suits, and voted to give Congress veto power over various Federal Trade Commission consumer protection rules. The class action provision, singled out by organized consumer groups as one of the most important issues in Congress this year, died on a 281-125 vote. The veto over trade regulation rules, a last-minute move by Rep. James Broyhill, R-N.C., won out 272-139.

Auto dealers report sales up

The "Big Four" automakers Thursday reported a 15.1 per cent increase in domestic car sales for the first 10-day selling period of the 1978-model year with priced-down, fuel-stingy small cars leading the way. General Motors, Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. had combined sales of 267,324 cars, up from 232,186 during the Oct. 1-10 period last year. AMC, the industry's small car specialist, was the only one of the company's to report a sales decline. Ford, recording the most sizeable increase with sales up 23.5 per cent, said its compact and minicar models accounted for 34 per cent of overall deliveries, compared with just 23 per cent from January through September.

Senate grants energy tax breaks

The Senate Finance Committee Thursday approved a series of special tax breaks for "alternative" energy sources ranging from extra investment tax credits for coal gasification to a depletion allowance for geothermal energy. The committee also approved a 20 per cent tax credit for the purchase of vans — vehicles with a capacity of nine passengers or more — to be used in commuter van pools.

More '76 profit for industry

U.S. industry earned an average 5.27 per cent on sales during 1976, compared with 1975's record low 4.63 per cent, according to Standard & Poor's Corp. In its annual survey of companies in the 400 industrials segment of the S&P 500 stock price index, the firm reported that of 62 industries surveyed, 49 registered e gain in earnings as a per cent of sales while 13 had a decline.

Dow hits 2-year low as rates climb

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average fell to a two-year low Thursday as the stock market suffered its fourth straight loss because of rising interest rates. Trading was the heaviest in more than two months.

The Dow Jones average, which fell 8.40 points Wednesday, lost another 5.81 points to 818.17, the lowest level since it finished at 816.51 Oct. 7, 1975. The Dow has plunged 186.48 points so far this year, including 22.18 points in the past four sessions.

Institutions have sold heavily because interest rates have risen so rapidly investors can make more money on short-term money instruments than on stocks and savings accounts. This happened last in 1974.

PRESIDENT CARTER, in a morning news conference, sparked more selling by charging the oil industry would engage in "profiteering" and stage the "biggest ripoff in history" if Congress doesn't enact his energy program. The Senate has dismantled the program.

A noontime bargain-hunting rally attempt frizzled amid fears the Federal Reserve Board would issue a gloomy money report. The Fed's 3 p.m. CDT report showed a $4.9 billion jump in the basic money supply in the latest week.

The fed has tightened credit much of the year because of a surge in the money supply. This has produced higher interest rates and raised concern industry will delay capital spending plans needed to sustain the economic recovery.

As a result, the New York Stock Exchange common stock index dropped .35 to 51.22, the lowest level since it finished at 51.19 Jan. 15, 1976, and the average price of a common share decreased 20 cents.

Yankees bring hot air to Dodgerland

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The rift between New York Yankees' Manager Billy Martin and his star outfielder Reggie Jackson continued to widen Thursday on the eve of the third World Series game with the Los Angeles Dodgers after Jackson openly second-guessed his manager for pitching Jim (Catfish) Hunter Wednesday night.

Jackson, still upset at being benched by Martin in the final game of the ALs playoffs against Kansas City, was critical of Martin's use of Hunter against the power-laden Dodgers because the former Cy Young Award winner had not pitched since Sept. 10.

Hunter was bombed for three home runs in 2-1/3 innings Wednesday night and was the losing pitcher in the Dodgers' 6-1 victory which evened the Series at one game apiece.

"IF YOU HAVEN'T pitched in a month, what do you think your problem would be?" Jackson said after Wednesday night's game. "How do you pitch the man when he hasn't pitched in a month?"

Informed of Jackson's comments at a workout Thursday, Martin said sarcastically, "Some guys have enough trouble doing their own job without worrying about others."

Martin defended his choice of Hunter by declaring he was out of pitchers.

"I had no other pitchers to go to," said Martin. "My only other choice would have been Dick (Tidrow) and if I used him I would have lost him for relief for four days. I don't think that's too hard to understand even for a guy with an IQ of 190."

MARTIN SAID that just because Hunter had not pitched in a game it didn't mean that his arm wasn't ready.

"It so happens he was throwing on the sidelines the last couple of weeks," said Martin. "Catfish had great velocity. His problem was he threw too many hanging sliders and every time he did they hit a home run. But (catcher Thurman) Munson said he was throwing good and I thought he was throwing good. Look what happened with (Don) Gullett. He hadn't pitched in a month either and he gave up only two runs in the first game. What if Hunter had pitched a shutout? Would I take the bows?

"I don't debate with any of my players what's right or wrong with a manager's decision. That's why I'm sitting in this chair."

Martin refused to say whether Jackson would sit down against left-handed pitching unless it's a guy like (Paul) Splittorff, whom probably start his contriversial All-Star in right field.

"I'M NOT PLANNING any major changes in my lineup. But I'm not going to announce it until Friday," said Martin. "Maybe he (Jackson) doesn't want to play. Normally, I don't sit him against left-handed pitching unless it's a guy like (Paul) Splittorff, whome Reggie can't hit. When he's hitting, he can hit anyone. When he's not hitting, he can't hit anybody."

Jackson said he was expecting to start but that Martin never talks to him personally.

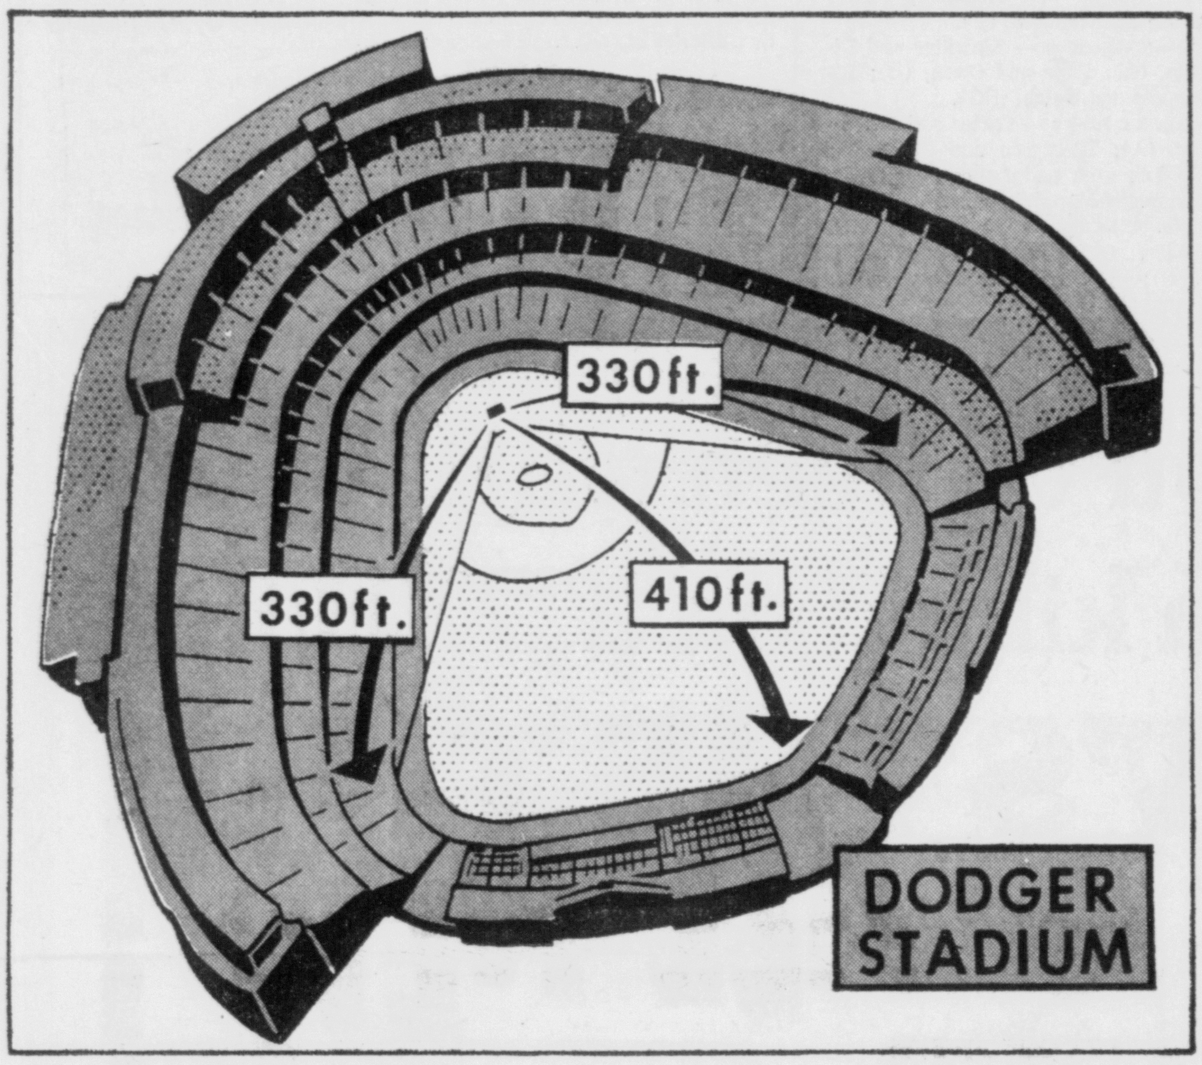
"Martin hasn't talked to me all year," said Jackson. "What more can he do to me? He's already demeaned me."

John, a spectator the last time the Dodgers played in the World Series, will be opposed by right-hander Mike Torrez when the best-of-seven series resumes tonight.

John, a 20-game winner this season, hasn't pitched since beating the Philadelphia Phillies in the Pennant clinching game Oct. 8. But, in that one he gave up only seven hits and did not allow a fly ball to be hit out of the infield for seven innings in a route-going 4-1 triumph.

TORREZ, WHO won 17 games during the regular season, also performed well in the Yankees' 5-3 Pennant clinching victory over Kansas City when he hurled 5 1-3 innings of scoreless relief.

John's World Series start is a special chapter to one of baseball's most incredible comeback stories. In 1974, the last time the Dodgers were in the World Series, John suffered a severe injury to his left elbow in mid-season and was recovering from a delicate operation when the Dodgers lost in five games to the Oakland A's.



DODGER STADIUM will be the site of Game 3 of the 1977 World Series tonight when 56,000 fans will jam into the Chavez Ravine complex to see the Dodgers battle the New York Yankees. The Stadium is full more often than it is empty. LA drew a record 2.9 million fans this season.

Baseball? Football fans up to bat for 4 area teams

by VIC NOVAK

Though the third game of the World Series is scheduled for tonight, area high school football fans may be more concerned with four teams playing their sixth game each.

The four teams are Fremd, Forest View, Rolling Meadows, and Elk Grove. Fremd visits Forest View in a nonconference clash and Rolling Meadows travels to Elk Grove for a Mid-Suburban League South Division encounter.

The other games Friday night are Hersey at Wheeling and Schaumburg at Conant.

Saturday's contests include Prospect at Hoffman Estates, Barrington at Palatine, Arlington at Buffalo Grove, Maine West at Niles West, and St. Viator at Holy Cross.

THOUGH THE Fremd-Forest View game does not count in either team's divisional standings, the crossover contest is still an excellent matchup. Fremd (5-0 overall) is tied for the MSL North Division lead with Barrington at 3-0 each, Forest View (3-2) is the third place team in the MSL South with a 2-1 mark.

High school football

Forest View coach Fred Lussow hopes his Falcons can stop Fremd's offense.

"We just hope our defense is up to the task of stopping Fremd," said Lussow. Weaver (Kevin) has to be the best back we've faced all season, but stopping him doesn't necessarily mean you've stopped Fremd. They also have another good back (Brian Cromie) and they can throw the ball if they have to."

Fremd coach Joe Samojedny is not sure just what the Falcons will do.

"We haven't played Forest View in such a long time I really don't know what to expect," said Samojedny. "I'm sure they'll come out throwing more than they have the last two weeks when it was so muddy."

THE ONLY SOUTH Division clash this evening matches dark horse Rolling Meadows against division -leading Elk Grove. The Grenadiers of Elk Grove are 4-1 for the year and 3-0 in league play. Rolling Meadows is 3-2 over-all 1-1 in conference action.

Elk Grove head coach Don Schnake respects Meadows' offensive strength. strength.

"They're well balanced," said Schnake about the Mustangs. "They throw real well and they run real well."

Schnake also said running back Jack Walsh will not play again. Elbow and knee injuries kept Walsh from playing against Schaumburg last Saturday. Senior Gene Wright took Walsh's place and rushed for 88 yards and two touchdowns.

The Hersey-Wheeling contest will decide a number of firsts. If Hersey wins, the victory would be the Huskies' No. 1 this season after five losses, including two-North Division setbacks.

If Wheeling emerges victorious, the triumph would be the Wildcats first ever over Hersey, following eight consecutive losses. Hersey also has shut out Wheeling the last four years.

THIS SEASON, Wheeling sports a 1-2 league mark and a 3-2 over-all ledger.

Schaumburg (1-4) and Conant (3-2) will be fighting for fifth place in the South Division. The Saxons of Schaumburg are fifth at 1-2 while Conant is one step lower with a 0-2 record.

Opposite records will be on the line between Prospect and Hoffman Estates. Prospect's Knights are unbeaten (5-0 and 2-0) while Hoffman's Hawks haven't won yet (0-4 and 0-3).

Two other teams having problems are Arlington and Buffalo Grove. The Big Red of Arlington is 1-1 in the North and 1-4 over-all. Buffalo Grove (1-4) is looking for its first North Division win against three losses.

Barrington will attempt to keep a perfect record (5-0) intact against Palatine (1-4). The Pirates of Palatine are tied with Arlington for second place, each being 1-1.

Maine West (2-3) coach Dan Mortier says the key for his team's success is stopping Niles West's wish-bone attack. "They (Niles West) run the option well and run off tackle well," said Mortier.

"They really have ball control," Mortier said. "If we can stop their running game and control the ball, we'll be all right." The game is a Central Suburban League South Division contest.

St. Viator carries a 1-1 over-all record and a 2-1 East Suburban Catholic League mark against Holy Cross's 3-2 seasonal and 2-0 league tallies.

Bulls bow 120-99 in exhibition game

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Jo Jo White scored 22 points to lead the Boston Celtics to a 120-99 National Basketball Assn. exhibition victory over the Bulls here Thursday night.

Boston outscored Chicago 11-1 in the last two minutes of the first quarter to take a lead it never relinquished. The Celtics led 65-34 at halftime as the Bulls only could connect on 24 per cent of its field goal attempts.

Take heart, 'Battleship' wins fight

Hawks drop opener to Flyers

PHILADELPHIA — Kate Smith stayed home, but the Philadelphia Flyers still managed to beat the Black Hawks 5-1 in their National Hockey League regular season opener here Thursday night.

Apparently the Flyers are saving Smith, whose thunderous rendition of "God Bless America" preceding the game has sparked Philadelphia to devastating efficiency over the years, for later in the season.

As it was, the sellout crowd of 17,000 and the retiring of the late Barry Ashbee's jersey during a pregame ceremony were enough to propel the Flyers past the Hawks and new coach Bob Pulford.

AFTER PIT Martin opened the game's scoring with an unassisted goal at 2:38 of the first period, the Flyers stormed back with three goals in the first period and two more in the second. Don Saleski scored two of the goals and added an assist.

The Flyers tied the game 1-1 at 7:17 on a score by Bill Barber and then took the lead later in the period with a pair of goals within 15 seconds of each other.

Reggie Leach converted a pass from Rick MacLeish for the tiebreaking goal at 15:27 on a power play. Hawk Phil Russell had been called for interference only 15 seconds before.

Then Saleski scored his first goal at 15:42 on a 40-foot slap shot from the right circle. Saleski assisted on a goal by defenseman Bob Dailey at 9:01 of the second period and netted his second goal of the night at 12:48.

AFTER MARTIN scored in the first period, stealing the puck from defenseman Rick LaPointe in front of the Flyer goal, Philadelphia goalie Wayne Stephenson blanked the Hawks and registered 35 saves.

The Flyers played without Paul Holmgren, Jimmy Watson, Bob Kelly and Mel Bridgman, all of whom were suspended following a brawl with the Boston Bruins in a preseason game last week.

The Hawks were similarly affected, though not as severly, with Dale Tallon staying in Chicago after getting suspended for one game following the Hawks' fight with Toronto Sunday night in Chicago.

Keith Magnuson, still ailing with an injured elbow, also did not see any action fo rthe Hawks. He is expected to play in the Hawks' home opener against the Colorado Rockies Saturday.

PRIOR TO THE game, the Flyers retired the No. 4 jersey worn by Ashbee, a defenseman and later an assistant coach who died of leukemia last summer. Each of the Flyers is wearing a patch this season in his memory.

Even without Smith appearing and singing at Flyers games, Philadelphia is very difficult to defeat at home. The Flyers were 33-6-1 last season at the Forum, second only to the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadians.

Although the Hawks lost on the scoreboard, team police man Bob "Battleship" Kelly won his first fight of the year against Gary Dornhoffer. Flyer Tom Bladon joined the second-period scrap and was handed a game misconduct.

Later in the third period, the Hawks' Grant Mulvey picked up major and minor penalties for fighting. The Hawks outshot Phildelphia 36-33 in shots on goal.

Let's turn pages back to get football moving again

Bob Frisk

Sports Editor

Football coaches love their X's and O's. They love to draw those diagrams of plays and watch them unfold to perfection — on the blackboard.

You never get stopped on a blackboard. Your O's know just what to do, and the X's can't respond. The handoffs are crisp, the blocking is crisp the patterns are crisp.

A play may be diagrammed to perfection, but the trouble with all those X's and O'x is that they're really flesh and blood They're people and people make mistakes.

ON THE BLACKBOARD there's no way you shouldn't score from inside the 10-yard line. But how many times do you see teams march 70 or 80 yards and then fail to move just a few more for the touchdown?

Ask the Los Angeles Rams. They failed from the one-yard line Monday against the Bears. They couldn't score from the six-inch line last December in a playoff game.

Every pro team has had the same experience, but most coaches won't gamble like the Rams' Chuck Knox. They'll call in their field goal kickers and get some points on the board.

That's the frustrating part for everyone concerned, including the fans who get tired of watching those little kickers bounce on and off the field all day.

DID YOU EVER wonder why a team can move 70 or 80 yards in eight plays and not move one or two in four more at the goal line? Granted, the defense may fight harder closer to home, everybody is bunched together, but this football oddity appears too frequently in the pro game to be easily explained.

As I watched the Rams struggle inside the 10 Monday with the Bears, I wondered if the fault should be placed on the formation, the T-formation and its variations. Does it really make any sense inside the 10 for a team to line up in a formation where the man who takes the snap turns his back on the goal line and moves the other way?

Think about that. It seems idiotic to have the guy with the ball running backwards even a few yards before handing the ball to the guy who's going to try to do something with it.

When you take the quarterback from the offensive flow, inside the 10, you're actually simplifying the defense's job. The passing threat is minimized since the only possible pass is nine yards or less.

"ITS EASY TO SIT behind a typewriter and pass judgment on the way the game is played today, but something is going wrong inside the 10. Field goals are for the 40-yard line, not the four.

The T-formation, with all its variations, is designed to scatter the defensive responsibilities at midfield. But it appears useless for the concentrated battles at the goal line. As a fan, and someone who likes field goal kickers as people but not as scoring machines, I'd love to see the single wing return inside the 10.

Do you remember it? The direct snap! Charge! Some teams would switch to the short punt or shot gun formation when in a passing situation or when trying to confuse the defense.

INVENTED BY Glenn "Pop" Warner about 1906, it was one of the most successful formations ever and dominated the game for decades. This was the game of the Twenties and Thirties, of Jim Thorpe and Red Grange.

The single wing got its name because one halfback was positioned on the "wing" or "flank" just outside the offensive end. It was a power formation that relied on good blocking backs and double team blocking by the offensive line, an effective ball control type of offense.

The advantage of the single wing (or disadvantage as coaches would insist today) was that the quarterback could be used as a blocker and NOT have to hand off the football.

In its original form, the single wing could never compare favorably with the swift and quick-hitting present-day offensive formations, but I still like the idea that the defense would be outnumbered at the point of attack.

I STILL LIKE the philosophy of the formation — get there first with the most men and run the defense down. I like that gang-busters attack off tackle for six points.

I can still remember films of a Princeton single wing tailback, Dick Kazmaier, running to the Heisman Trophy in 1951. I can remember the single wing still being used as late as 1954 by UCLA, Arkansas and the Pittsburgh Steelers. I still remember the Main High School teams coached by Kenny Olson with such talented tailbacks as Bruce Gallup and Bob Neumann.

There obviously was a major personnel problem with the single wing. Instead of finding one player who could run, another who could pass and a third who could kick, the single wing coach had to find a triple threat tailback who could do all three.

Something has to be done to keep those field goal kickers on the sidelines when a team makes a beautiful drive down the field. It's such a waste to see a 70-or 80-yard drive wind up with three points — or no points.

FOOTBALL, uniquely among sports, has strategically expanded as America has developed. That's good, but maybe it's time to turn the calendar back and reevaluate those X's and O's.

When a team brings in a field goal kicker and concedes it cannot punch in a ball whose nose is on the goal line, there must be something fundamentally wrong with the system.

Evenly matched Harper, Triton to battle Saturday

So far this fall, the Harper and Triton football teams have behaved similarly. Both the Hawks and the Trojans have relied on strong defensive efforts and they've also had trouble putting together a consistent offensive attack.

Those similarities should provide an interesting contest when Triton visits Harper Saturday. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

"I think both teams are equal in terms of talent," said Tom Crum, the Trojan coach. "It's always been a good game between these teams, but it's a little more even this year. It will probably be a matter of which team makes the fewest mistakes."

HARPER COACH John Eliasik agrees with Crum.

"I think it will be a close game," he said. "They have a solid backfield with a good quarterback and I think our defenses are similar."

Eliasik has been pleased with his offense in the last two games because they have been able to cut down on some costly mistakes. But the Hawk coach is still unhappy about his team's inability to score when the opportunity is there.

"That's where our offense has been breaking down," Eliasik said. "The biggest disappointment on offense has been too many interceptions, which have stopped us."

IN FIVE GAMES, Harper has been plagued by nine interceptions, many coming inside the opponent's territory.

Triton's problems on offense have centered around penalties.

"Many have been costly ones that break up drives. We haven't been as consistent offensively as we would like to be," Crum said. "We've been stronger on defense this year."

So have the Hawks, who shut out their last two opponents. Harper is 3-2 and Triton is 2-3.

Tennis title set for Arlington or Barrington

by VIC NOVAK

Arlington and Barrington high schools are expected to dominate the Mid-Suburban League Conference Girls Tennis Meet that begins today. Forest View High School will host the singles events and Rolling Meadows is the doubles competition site. The starting time at both schools is 1 p.m.

It's no surprise that Arlington and Barrington are the meet favorites. The two peremnial powers were preseason title picks, and both justified such early optimism.

During the dual meet season that concluded Tuesday, Arlington finished 6-0 while Barrington was 5-1 in the North Division. Barrington's only loss was to Arlington, 4-3, on Sept. 15

OTHER North Division results saw Hersey 4-2, Fremd 3-3, Buffalo Grove 2-4, Wheeling 1-5, and Palatine 0-6.

In the South Division, Prospect won six and lost none. The Knights were followed by Forest View (5-1), Rolling Meadows (4-2), Elk Grove and Schaumburg (2-4 each), plus Hoffman Estates and Conant (1-5 each).

Entering the conference meet, North Division point totals are: Arlington 38, Barrington 34, Hersey 21, Buffalo Grove 19, Fremd 18, Wheeling 14 and Palatine 3.

South Division point totals are: Prospect 37, Forest View 28, Rolling Meadows 24, Schaumburg 19, Elk Grove 16, Hoffman Estates 12, and Conant 11.

Currently, each team has been ranked from one to seven in each division with the divisional leaders being ranked one and the last place teams seven.

The teams will be ranked the same way following the conference meet. Then, the two rankings will be added together. Thus, the team with the final lowest ranking number is the official conference champion.

Here's the current seeding for the conference meet:

No. 1 Singles — Smart, BG); Swaya, (HE); Haberkorn, (A); Olson, (B). No. 2 Singles — Rub, (PH); Sampson, (H); Huber, (B); and Richy, (A).

No. 3 Singles — Moore, (P); S. Weber, (A); Russel, (B); and Halvorsen, (W).

No. 1 Doubles — Sanderson and Broderick, (A); Stephan and Gregory, (B); Keagle and Kastning, (RM); Young and Hoffman, (P).

No. 2 Doubles — Klawitter and DiCola, (A); Pope and Owen, (B); Riforgiato and Welch, (BG).

No. 3 Doubles — Carter and M. Weber, (A); Thompson and Paul, (B); Anderson and Langowski, (FV); Hodge and Marconi, (FR).

Fremd can stop counting, Palatine ends CC streak

by ART MUGALIAN

Chuck Elliott was angry. He was a winner, but he was mad.

His Palatine cross country teammates, led by Tom Johnson, Kevin Nikolai and Elliott himself, had beaten Fremd, 27-29, in a dual meet Thursday at Palatine Hills. Fremd had not lost a dual meet since Oct. 19, 1971 when, coincidentally, Palatine beat them. The Fremd Vikings had won 64 straight dual meets over the past six years.

NOW ELLIOTT wanted to know what was so good about Fremd. Why were the Vikings rated second in the state? Why were the Vikings always the touted team?

Why indeed?

Elliott, running after a week's layoff because of the flu, finished second behind Johnson in 15:28, barely holding off Fremds' Tom Ross, who was third. Palatine's Nikolai was fourth in 15:31. Pirate teammates Jon Dahlgren and Jim Lancaster were ninth and 11th.

The victory clinched the MSL North title for Palatine.

Elliott's anger was tempered by his jubilation. His bright blue eyes sparkled as he counted the times Fremd had beaten Palatine in these showdown meets.

"WE'VE TRIED SO hard so many times," he said, beads of sweat dropping off his angular chin. "They're a good team and Ross is a good runner. This just shows that there are no tougher runners than in Palatine."

Johnson's 15:08 was an incredible performance on the zig-zag course, pocked here and there with wet spots and gullies.

"Tom Johnson ran a super-charged race," admitted Fremd coach Roy Hascup. "He's a ranked runner, no doubt about that. But I didn't expect that he'd take such a big lead. And I expected a little more green up there."

Fremd's colors were packed in a bunch behind Nikolai — from fifth man Matt Filosa (15:43) through Ed Martinez, Mike Warren and eighth runner Bob Ratcliffe (15:54).

BUT THE NINTH finisher was Dahlgren of Palatine in 15:57. He beat Dan Inbody of Fremd by three seconds.

"I thought Dahlgren was pivotal," said Hascup. "We knew they wouldn't go 1-2-3 but we felt that if we gave up two, looking at it pessimistically, we wanted two or three inside their No. 3. Or else four or five more inside Dahlgren. But our pack was split up."

The Palatine victory was a tribute to coach Joe Johnson, who has been at the Pirate Helm for 15 years. Several of his former runners were on hand to see Johnson's current Pirates end the Viking streak.

"We've lost some tough ones to Fremd," he said. "We had it won with 200 yards to go in each of the last two years. I guess you win a few and you lose a few."

JOHNSON CREDITED Elliott's superb effort at race's end, when he kept Ross from passing him, as a major reason for the victory. "There were a lot of places we could have lost it — and that was one of them," he said.

"I would have preferred if we had run 1-2-3," said Johnson. "But Nikolai is coming back off of two weeks layoff because of an ankle injury. He wasn't able to train at all. And I think that Nikolai is one of the top five runners in the state. He was running ahead of Johnson and Elliott before his injury."

The top three for Palatine were supposed to be able to win the meet by themselves — or not at all. But the Pirates showed they were more than a three-man team.

"This meet showed the importance of depth," said Fremd's Hascup. "Today, Joe's depth was there and ours faltered. Now we have to go to work."

Hascup shrugged off the end of the Viking streak. "That's gone now," he said. "Lady Luck has to figure in building a streak like that and now we just have to start over.

"We had some misfortune out there," Hascup said. "We tried hard, we gave a good effort, but Palatine did the job.".

And that makes Chuck Elliott happy.

No discipline for coach who gets kick out of chick

DUBUQUE, Iowa (UPI) — Officials have decided not to discipline a high school football coach who spray-painted a chicken and urged his players to kick it around for inspiration.

The decision not to discipline Hempstead High School Coach Robert Timmerman, 40, was made after no complaints were lodged by school officials of citizens at this week's school board meeting.

Board Pres. Robert Scott said Timmerman used the chicken "as a gimmick" to inspire his players after practice the night before the team met intercity rival Wahlert.

The chicken was spray-painted gold to represent "the Golden Eagles" of Wahlert and was kicked by the team members after Timmerman had told them to "get the eagle."

The injured bird later was destroyed.

"The man has apologized and we consider the matter closed," Scott said.

Coody first round Texas Open leader

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — Charles Coody, showing little impact from a month-long layoff, fired a 7-under-par 63 Thursday and took a one-stroke lead over George Archer after the first round of the $150,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

Coody, 40, of Abilene, Tex., had attempted to play in only one tournament since August and missed the cut at the Kingsland, Ohio open. He has not won a tournament since he captured the 1971 Masters championship.

Coody covered the 6,525-yard Oak Hills Country Club course with eight birdies and only a misjudgment that gave him a bogey on No. 7 kept him from tying the course record of 62, established last year by Jim Barker.

Bill Calfee, Mark Hayes, Dave Newquist, Dr. Gil Morgan, Carlton White and Larry Ziegler were knotted at 67s entering the second round.

Defending champion Butch Baird, who defeated Miller Barber in a playoff last year, ballooned to a 74 on opening day, and crowd favorite Lee Trevino, still trying to win his first Texas Open, wound up at 72.

New Orleans bids for Finley's A's

NEW ORLEANS — A group of investors has raised $1.5 million to purchase the Oakland A's and move them to the Louisiana Superdome but still is $2 million short of its goal, a baseball executive said Thursday.

A. Ray Smith, owner of the New Orleans Pelicans of the American Association, said the investors need $3.4 million — 29 per cent of the $12 million A's owner Charlie Finley is asking — before the deal can be consummated.

"The road has been cleared," Smith said. "Finley wants to sell and the American League owners are ready to vote on moving the franchise."

Smith, who has said the Pelicans will not return to the Superdome next year, said shares were being sold with several civic leaders pushing for support.

"My feeling is if the mayor, the governor and Sen. Russell Long would get in a room together, with three telephones, they could raise the $2 million necessary and the Superdome would have a big-league team next season," Smith said.

Benson to miss Bulls exhibition

MILWAUKEE — The Milwaukee Bucks had some bad news Thursday about three of their players — center Kent Benson, forward Dave Meyers and guard Brian Winters — who will all miss the exhibition season finale tonight in Chicago against the Bulls.

Meyers will be out with a sore achilles tendon, Winters with a mild case of the flu and Benson with bruised ribs.

The Bucks open the regular season against the Los Angeles Lakers and former Milwaukee Bucks' star Kareeem Abdul-Jabbar. The Bucks said the three players should be able to play.

Borg, Dibbs and Orantes advance

MADRID — Favorites Bjorn Borg, Eddie Dibbs and Manuel Orantes moved into the quarter-finals of the $100,000 Madrid Grand Prix tennis tournament Thursday with straight sets victories.

Borg, who is angling for a comeback after retiring from the U.S. Open last month with an arm ailment, stopped fellow Swede Birger Andersson 6-4, 6-3.

Orantes of Spain defeated ninth-seeded Balazs Taroczy of Hungary 6-4, 6-0.Floridian Eddie Dibbs throttled South African doubles specialist Frew McMillan 6-1.

Ali part of Montreal NASL bid

NEW YORK — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali and boxing promoter Don King are part of a five-man group seeking to establish a Montreal franchise in the North American Soccer League.

"We're definitely interested in becoming part of the NASL," King said Thursday. "We made a presentation to the league and we're waiting now for a decision. Muhammad is with me and we would both have part of the founding stock."

King said he was approached about the idea by three Canadians — Harry Jacobs, a clinical psychiatrist and soccer enthusiast, Max Tobin, a mutual funds salesman, and Zeb Aberman, a construction millionaire.

Neither King nor Ali would be required to put up large sums of their own money for the deal, King said, but their presence was important to attract young black American athletes to the growing sport.

ANTHONY IMPORTS
LESS WORK FOR MOTHER.

A Puch (it rhymes with book) may just be the answer to your prayers.

Because it's less work and more fun than anything else on wheels.

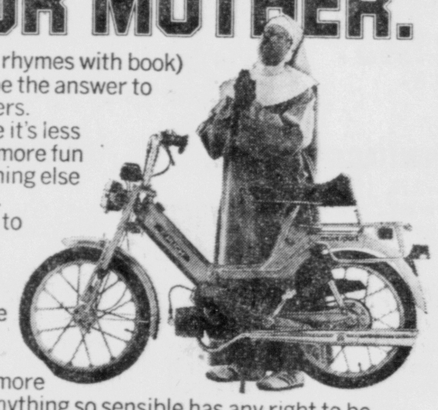
It's easy to ride. Easy to maintain. And easy on the purse strings.

Still it's more fun than anything so sensible has any right to be.

The pedals are for starting. The engine's for breezing around the countryside (at a dignified pace of course), making your rounds, doing your errands, or just plain having a good time.

Who needs one?

Anybody who appreciates up to 125 miles on a gallon of fuel, and everybody who's for a few more smiles as we pass through this vale of tears. We sell Puch and we'd like to invite you by for a test ride. Just to see how much fun less work can be.



PUCH. THE MAXIMUM MOPED.

In state tourney action

Five area golf teams advance

Five Mid-Suburban League golf teams had successful outings in district action Thursday as the first step to the state tournament got under way.

Palatine, Fremd and Conant finished in the top three spots at Indian Lakes in the Lake Park district while Barrington and Hersey finished first and second in the Hersey-hosted tourney.

The winners in the Lake Park district will advance to the East Leyden sectional and those from the Hersey district will move to the Lake Forest sectional. Both will be played Tuesday.

AT INDIAN LAKES, Palatine put on a strong show by coming in with the best team and individual scores. The Pirates were able to put things together after a fifth-place finish in the Mid-Suburban League two days earlier.

The Pirates edged Fremd, the MSL champions, by three strokes, 320-323, on the par 72 course. Pirate John Mickelson was first on the individual list for the day with a score of 76. Jon Stedronsky (7th) had an 80 while Mike Maione and Jon Cyboran each carded 82s to round out the Pirates' leading score.

Fremd was led by Jim Bruning, who finished third amoong the individuals with a 79. His brother Win had an 80 to take a sixth-place medal after a playoff with five other golfers. Ron Stanford and Don Sullivan ended the day with 82s for the Vikings.

The Conant Cougars, who have progressed rapidly throughout the season, finished with a team total of 326 to qualify for the sectionals. After a strong fourth-place showing in the conference meet, the Cougars continued to be impressive in the districts.

WITH TEAM consistency, they were paced by Randy Severinsen and Mike Hagan, who each had 80s. Brian Dumler (82) and Dan Pfeiffer (84) also figured in the Conant team score.

Forest View missed qualifying by one stroke with a 327. Joe Carcerano had a 78 to win a second-place medal and a spot in sectional play, and Dan Caporusso finished with an 80. Rolling Meadows also came on strong late in the season. The Mustangs had a 335 in the Lake Park district with 82s by Hank Guaglianone and Rich Vojtsek.

Elk Grove's Tim Callard, qualifying for sectionals, shot an 80 to pick up a fifth-place medal as the Greandiers finished with a team score of 340.

At Hersey's district, Barrington was paced by 77s from Jim Michael and Mike Wahl. The hosting Huskies had the leading individual as they finished three strokes behind Barrington.

BRAD HALL was the first-place medalist with a 71 for Hersey. Following him on the Hersey card were Chris Duros (78), Dan Kochevar (82) and John Angelos (84).

At the New Trier West district, Arlington came one stroke from qualifying for sectionals. The Cards had a team score of 334 to finish in a tie for fourth place with Evanston.

Prospect, the defending state champs, were eliminated in this year's competition as the Knights finished with a 343. Steve Kurka had an 80 to qualify for the Lake Forest sectional. Maine West's Mike Franklin (79) also will advance.

With Eiffel Tower as tee, Palmer opens Paris meet

PARIS (UPI) — Police sealed off the area around the Eiffel Tower Thursday as word spread that Arnold Palmer is back in town.

Despite all precautions, Palmer, the millionaire golfing pro, still hit a bus as he drove three golf balls off the tower's second level for the second year running.

It was Palmer's second shot which bounced off the bus' roof before going on to travel 400 yards, 123 yards better than the "record" he set last year.

The weather was foul for that attempt, which yielded a best of 277 yards from a height of 377 feet.

This year, bright sunshine and an almost windless day helped 49-year-old Palmer celebrate the start of the Lancome Trophy tournament in suburban Saint-Nom-la-Breteche, which continues through Sunday.

"Let's hope I can drive as well as that in the tournament," quipped Palmer, when he heard how far his second ball had gone.

His first and third shots both landed in a small pond in the middle of the Champ de Mars fairway on the tower's south side, a distance of 364 yards.

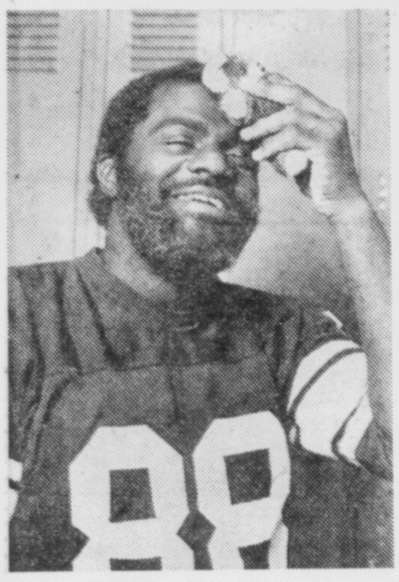
Bears will discover what mudders the Vikings are



ALAN PAGE, the Minnesota Vikings' defensive lineman, is psyching himself for Sunday's game against the Bears by applying a tiny teddy bear to his forehead.

by BOB GALLAS

Walter Payton's three-ring running circus may be limited to one ring Sunday when the Bears invade Minnesota in a battle for the lead in National Football Conference Central division, but coach Jack Pardee is sure the show will go on.

Heavy rainfall, and even snowfall, has turned the Vikings' Metropolitan Stadium into a quagmire so muddy that Minnesota coach Bud Grant cut practice short Wednesday because of the gook. But Pardee thinks the Bears' running attack won't suffer greatly.

"It will affect Walter when he trys to go to the side, like on the sweeps, because it's hard to change direction and cut back upfield," Pardee said Thursday. "He'll still be able to run straight ahead pretty good."

THE VIKINGS beat the Lions in the mud Sunday and more rain fell afterward, including a snowfall Tuesday morning. Both clubs are hoping the weatherman is correct. The Minneapolis forecast calls for clear and mild weather the rest of the week.

"As long as we can get a few days of warm breezes and sun, it will be all right," said Merrill Swanson, the Vikings director of public relations.

With both clubs bringing high-powered running attacks into the game, mud could force the teams to find other means of moving the football.

"It (the mud) can help the passing game if the quarterback gets time to throw," Pardee said. "It's easier for the receiver to throw the defensive back off balance when he makes a cut. But the receiver has to be careful to keep from falling himself."

THE MUD CAN also slow down the pass rush and that's an area where the Bears have had trouble this year. A scrambling Archie Manning led the New Orleans Saints to a win over the Bears earlier but the pass rush was improved Monday when the Bears upset the Rams, led by quarterback Joe Namath, who doesn't move around much.

Sunday, the Bears will face the premier scrambler of the National Football League, Fran Tarkenton. Mud could make the chase of Tarkenton even more difficult.

The defensive line has been working for the past two weeks on drills aimed at improving their rush and keeping them on their feet.

"We've had trouble with defensive lineman falling down on the pass rush," Pardee explained. "They don't always have real good body control."

THE PASS RUSH may get even more help this week from defensive tackle Wally Chambers, who has apparently come through OK after his first game since being sidelined by an injury. Chambers played almost three quarters in Monday's win over the Rams and Pardee expects him to play against the Vikings.

"There's a lot of soreness (in Chambers' problem knee) but Wally took part in all the drills today (Thursday)," said Pardee. chambers is still listed as a "Questionable" starter for Sunday, which means he has a 50-50 chance of playing.

"With his condition changing as it does we'll probably have to list him that way every week for the rest of the year," said Pardee.

BEAR FACTS: The Bears have now sold out for the remainder of the season at home . . . The few remaining tickets for the Kansas City and Green Bay games were sold early this week.

Aerial circus highlights reshaped Purdue offense

Loren Tate

Hey, Jim Young, hold on there a minute.

Think back on your upbringing. Whoever heard of an Ohioan surviving the Hayes-Schembeckler brainwashing and still looking with favor on the forward pass.

Next thing you know they'll be recalling your citizenship papers.

Come to your senses. Can't you see that Bo has Michigan right back up there in the No. 1 spot with an option-running offense? And Ohio State isn't far behind after Saturday's 46-0 lashing of your Purdue Boilermakers.

I mean, Gary Moeller isn't setting the world on fire these days either, but he is at least remaining loyal to his convictions. Whoever heard of a Big Ten team ditching its fundamentals and putting all its eggs in the basket of a rubber-armed freshman?

"IDEALLY," ANSWERS Young, "you'd like to establish your running game first, but with a young man of Mark Herrmann's ability, we feel we can establish a sound passing game. We'll complement that with the run. That's the opposite approach, but you can't run a power attack without power personnel."

It almost sounds like you're saying you can't operate Michigan's bowl-'em-over system without Michigan personnel. that sounds plausible. Go on.

"Certainly we'd like to run the football more than we have, but any coach has to adjust the offense to the personnel he has available. We feel we're best suited to be a passing team."

THIS BECAME OBVIOUS on opening day. The 6-5 Herrmann, who helped the Indianapolis suburb of Carmel to the state basketball title, came off the bench to pass Purdue into contention in a 19-14 loss to Michigan State. What has occurred since has been the total reshaping of the offensive unit to fit the Herrmann drop-back style.

The No. 2 fullback, 218-pound senior Mike Brown, was moved to tailback in order to provide Herrmann a pair of jumbo blockers for pass protection. And the No. 1 fullback, LaSalle-Peru veteran John Skibinski, who banged out 871 yards as a junior, has become one of the Big Ten's receiving leaders on short swings and delays.

Short passes! Yes, this is typical. Teams that worship at the aerial altar always make tantalizing little outlet passes central to the attack. Teams that don't throw as much, it seems, tend to throw longer when the occasion calls. Perhaps that's because they generally wait until it's 3rd-and-long.

SO, WHAT HAS Purdue accomplished with this early-season aerial circus?

They're 2 and 3 record-wise, but prior to Saturday's 46-0 debacle with Ohio State (that's how Woody Hayes treats a traitor, Jim), the losing scores were 19-14 to MSU and 31-24 to Notre Dame. Crowds are up, and there is a positive air of excitement around West Lafayette.

In 202 running plays this season, the Boilermakers have gained a modest 601 yards. But in 194 passing plays (177 thrown by Herrmann), the team has netted a stunning 1,437 yards. Illinoisans can get some perspective on this total with the knowledge that only Tommy O'Connell in 1952 ever passed for more Illini yardage (1,761) and O'Connell played nine games.

"Mark has an excellent arm," Young said. "But the main thing is his poise and leadership."

THE ROOKIE'S astonishing emergence raises a nagging question as the Illini travel to West Lafayette this weekend: how does Purdue keep coming up with such superlative passers? Were Phipps, Griese and Dawson that great all along, or did their development have something to do with the way they were used?

It apparently centers around a tradition established by former player, quarterback coach and head coach Bob DeMoss. And the Boilermakers paid homage to this tradition when they sought Alex Agase's successor as coach. They weren't about to hire a coach lacking in respect for the passing game.

Young, you see, had cut Schembechler's cord in 1973 (after nine years) and cast his lot with the Michigan of the West: Arizona. He promptly took a Wildcat team that had suffered through four straight losing seasons and turned it around with consecutive 8-3, 9-2, 9-2 campaigns.

He had to be doing something right. And, yes, he was doing it through the air. His 1975 club averaged 30 points per game, was fifth nationally in total offense and threw for 1,871 yards and 19 TDs with just nine turnovers (a national low). Last year junior quarterback Marc Lunsford, a Hoosier, stepped into the passing role as Arizona completed 53 per cent of its passes for 1,931 yards and 18 TDs.

Eye in the press box has Purdue students miffed

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Purdue University Police plan to continue using a videotape camera to look for lawbreakers at some home football games, even though there have been a few complaints.

Police Supt. Grant Kepner said the video equipment is used primarily to spot medical emergencies and train campus police in evacuation procedures. Its use as a crimespotting tool is secondary, but still somewhat effective, he said.

The crowd has been scanned during the past two seasons but few persons knew about it until the campus newspaper, The Exponent, charged the scanning was being done selectively.

The camera is located in the press box on the west side of Ross-Ade Stadium. Its best view is of the east side where Purdue students normally sit. At the most recent home game Oct. 1 eight persons, including seven students, were arrested on marijuana charges.

But the equipment's primary function, Kepner said, is to spot medical emergencies and view the 20 to 30 campus policemen on duty at home games. Tapes are viewed later and used for critique purposes in training police in crowd control and emergency evacuation procedures, he said.

Synthetic oil endorsed

SYNTHETIC MOTOR oils were given a big but little noted - endorsement in Detroit last week when a Ford Motor Co. vice president said tests of the lubricants proved they were everything the petroleum companies said they were.

But Ford stopped short of recommending that motorists use the oils in their cars during the 12-month-12,000 mile warranty period.

At last week's press preview of Ford's 1978 model cars, Robert B. Alexander, vice president-car development group, said the company tested the claim of Mobil Corp. that its Mobil One oil can go 30,000 miles without change "and verified it as right."

Alexander was answering a question about extended oil change intervals recommended by Detroit. Changes, recommended every 2,000 miles not too many years ago, are now recommended every 7,500 to 10,000 miles, so Alexander was asked whether it was possible to use a synthetic and not change at all the first year.

But Howard Freers, Ford's vice president in charge of engine and chassis development, quickly added that to keep a warranty valid, Ford still recommended changing oil at 10,000 miles on subcompacts and 7,500 miles on large cars.

Plett goals carry Flames to a 2-2 tie with Bruins

Willi Plett, the National Hockey League's Rookie of the Year last season, scored both Atlanta goals Thursday to carry the Flames to a 2-2 tie with the host Boston Bruins in the first game of the season for both teams.

Boston had led 2-1 on goals by Bob Schmautz in the first period and rookie Dwight Foster in the second session.

But Plett, who had given the Flames a 1-1 tie in the opening 20 minutes, knotted the game on a 10-footer that goalie Giles Gilbert trapped under his body, then knocked in with his stick.

Boston, which lost to Montreal in last spring's Stanley Cup finals, had led since 12:15 of the second period when Foster, the Bruin's first-round draft choice, poked his own rebound between the legs of Atlanta net minder Dan Bouchard. The Bruins opened the scoring 1:16 into the game on Schmautz' 12-footer. The Flames tied the contest at 6:06 when Plett rifled a 35-footer past Gerry Cheevers, who played only tht first period.

NHL report

N.Y. ISLANDERS 3, BUFFALO 2

Rene Robert scored two goals, one unassisted, to lead the Buffalo Sabres to a 3-2 victory over the New York Islanders in the NHL season opener for both teams.

Robert scored his first goal at 8:55 of the first period on a power play to put Buffalo ahead 1-0, then added what proved to be the winning goal at 13:30 of the second period to make it 3-1.

Jim Lorentz scored Buffalo's second goal when he tucked in a rebound on a power play at 6:34 of the second period.

Islanders' No. 1 draft pick Michel Bossy scored New York's first goal on a power play at 9:24 in the first period when he came around from behind the Buffalo net and fired in a backhander. Denis Potvin scored an unassisted goal at 13:37 of the final period to close the margin to 3-2.

DETROIT 3, TORONTO 3

Veteran left wing Dan Maloney scored with just 1:36 to give the Detroit Red Wings a 3-3 tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs and give both teams' new coaches a measure of satisfaction in their NHL debuts.

Pat Boutette scored two goals and Jack Valiquette assisted on all three Toronto goals in Roger Nielson's first game behind the Maple Leaf bench. Boutette's second goal, 3:26 into the third period, gave the Maple Leafs a seemingly safe 3-1 lead.

But rookie Rick Bowness rifled a 35-footer between Toronto goalie Mike Palmateer's legs with 4:29 to play to trigger the Detroit comeback and fellow rookie Dale McCourt set up Maloney's goal-mouth shot with a behind-the-net pass.

Boutette and linemate Jim McKenny scored just 3:33 apart in the second period to give the Maple Leafs a 2-1 lead after Michel Bergeron scored in the first period for Detroit.

Brothers keep Stevenson winning

by KEITH REINHARD

If it were possible to mesh the two Schmitke brothers together, the result would be one pretty healthy-sized football player.

Stevenson coach Tom Baumann likes it the way it is, however . . . unless it comes to statistics. Together this season senior Todd (5-9, 150 pounds) and junior Mark (5-8, 140) have rushed for nearly 800 yards and scored well over half of the 125 points put on the board by the Patriots this season.

Last week Todd's two-touchdown production not only helped his team to a 20-7 triumph over Antioch, it boosted his point production for the season to 48 and he has now taken over the Herald area grid scoring lead.

"WE KNEW THEY were both quick, but we were concerned about their size," recalls Baumann of his preseason thoughts on the Schmitke boys. "I wasn't sure about their blocking abilities and our system calls for halfbacks to block as well as run with the ball."

Needless to say, the Stevenson helmsman was more than pleasantly surprised. In the case of Todd, his 468 yards of rushing ranks him fifth in the area and he has crossed the goal line at least once in each of the five games his team has played.

Baumann hints at the idea that perhaps some interfamily competitiveness has made them both better football players. "It's a little more subdued now, but Todd and Mark have been barking instructions back and forth to one another since before the season began. A lot of it's of the good natured variety but it gets intense at times."

Whatever the Schmitke brothers are sharing, it's paying dividends for the team with four victories in five outings. And if Todd does not bother to check over his shoulder once in awhile, it will probably be Mark passing him up in the statistical departments.

They are working on a dream in the Badgers' camp

by DON FRISKE

This has been a week for dreaming in the town of Madison, Wis.

The dream consists of a Saturday-night party with dancing and mingling on the streets just off Lake Mendota. There is singing, back-slapping and a merry mood hanging lightly in the air. But, remember, this is only a dream.

As everyone knows, the best dreams rarely come true. But when you're a Big Ten football fan and your team has a solid gold chance to break out of the Little Eight, maybe a small portion of the dream has already escaped its life in fantasy.

IN YEARS PAST, when Little Eight schools prepared for a game with Michigan or Ohio State (the Big Two), the coaches would look at their players and say, "Let's win this game and surprise some people." Few people were ever surprised.

When Wisconsin coach John Jardine sits down with his team before its game with Michigan Saturday, he will have something more to work with than the inspiration of a possible upset victory. He'll be able to motivate his ranks by reminding them that a victory means first place.

That's right. Both the Badgers and the Wolverines go into the game with

Don Friske

Byline report

5-0 overall records. So you can see that the people of Madison are geared for good times Saturday night.

Jardine just hopes his players can come through for the local fanatics who jam Camp Randall Stadium every time a game is played on the Wisconsin campus.

UNFORTUNATELY FOR the Badgers, however, Camp Randall will be a quiet structure of cold steel Saturday afternoon. There won't be any cheers bouncing from one side of the field to the next and there won't be any intimidation forced upon the Michigan team.

The Badgers must take their best opportunity, one that is better than any conference team has had in recent years to make it a Big Three, into Ann Arbor, Mich.

And when the hopeful group of Badgers race onto the field, they'll be surrounded by 104,000 people, spread in all directions so far that they seem to extend into the sky. They'll be yelling and screaming, their voices rolling down toward the field. And only a few will be rooting for the Badgers.

The home advantage for the Wolverines is disadvantage No. 1 for the Badgers.

DISADVANTAGE NO. 2 is their own success. Michigan coach Bo Schembechler doesn't buy the arguments that the Badgers are untested. All he sees is a team that has gotten off to its fastest start since 1921, regardless of the fact that the Badgers have played such pushovers as Northern Illinois and Northwestern, two teams still looking for that first victory this season.

"This is a game that could mean the championship," Schembechler has said. "I don't look for a letdown."

The Wolverine coach also knows that Wisconsin is the Only Big Ten team to have every conference opponent on its schedule this fall, something he sees as a plus for the Badgers.

"That's great advantage because if every team loses one game, Wisconsin could win because it's played one more game. I don't see any Big Two in the conference this year," Schembechler said.

Those two disadvantages — playing away from home and having so much success this year — could cost the Badgers a voctory.

But to be more realistic, if the Badgers lose it will probably be because of Michigan's overwhelming speed on offense. Or the option attack led by the agile Rick Leach. Or the Wolverine offensive line that has been compared to professional units for its ability and size.

Jardine has closed practices this week and he is not granting any interviews. He wants few interruptions as he tries to put together the pieces of a dream.

No wonder he hops around on the sideline

EAU GALLIE, Fla. (UPI) — Coach Larry Canaday admitted Thursday he has bitten the head off a live frog from time to time to fire up his high school football players.

But he says he is giving up the practice because of recent unfavorable publicity.

"All it is, is to get our kids up for ballgames," said Canaday, coach of the Eau Gallie High School Commodores.

"I'VE DONE IT for three or four years," said Canaday, 40, who played at Western Carolina and East Tennessee State. He said he didn't do it "a lot," just "every now and then, maybe once during the year."

Canaday, who shaved his head last year to help motivate his team, said biting a frog "was something I thought of one day. I did it on the spur of the moment."

He said he was trying to motivate a player and said, " 'Son, you've got to get fired up.'

"I looked down and saw a little frog and I just reached down and grabbed it and bit its head off," Canaday said, adding that the player's "eyes got big as saucers."

HE SAID "the kids bring them to me all the time and I say, 'Naw, boys, no.' "

He said he and his players "holler and scream and carry on. We're not the type that grabs our kids. We psych everything up. We use all kinds of methods. We go stark raving mad, start jumping up and down and hollering."

The frog-biting technique came to light when Fred Chase, coach of the rival Satellite High School, said he was mistakenly identified as the coach who bit frogs.

Canaday said Chase called him and said, " 'Larry, it's hit the fan.' "

CANADAY SAID he is "bound to get a little bit of negative reaction from this. I may get a lot." He said he will give up frog-biting, adding, "I'm afraid it's going to be forced on me."

Canaday said his motivational techniques worked well last year when the team won nine games and lost only one, despite having only one player over 200 pounds. But this year the team has lost three of its four games.

Eau Gallie Principal Robert L. Donaldson said he was not directly aware of the coach's unusual techniques.

"I haven't seen him do any of these things, but you can create a controversy out of any subject if you want to," Donaldson said.

"Coach Canaday gives 24 hours a day for his players — he's admired by most of the students here and he's been good for our kids," Donaldson said.

"I don't eat frog heads and I guess it's not something I'd put in a coaching handbook," he added. "But a lot of coaches have their own crazy way of doing things and I'm sure there are things that go on every day at a lot of schools that wouldn't go on if they were made known to the public."

Arlington kickers take 3rd straight triumph

by KEITH REINHARD

The Arlington soccer team is hot.

If any team is certain of this it is Fremd, whose North Division title hopes were dealt the coup de grace by the Cardinals Thursday night, 5-4.

"Incredible," was the way Redbird coach Gilles Lonteen described the contest. "I knew even when we were losing early in the season that we had a good ball club. The kids have never let up and today I think we proved we can play with the best of them."

The triumph was the third straight reeled off by Arlington and their fourth in five games. It came only after four ties during the contest, when Brian Wachlin was credited with his fourth goal of the game on a shot actually knocked in by a harassed Viking defenseman.

THE GAME WAS knotted at 3-all during halftime. Mike Mitsch opened scoring for Fremd and Steve Norys and Jerry Norys also contributed during the first period.

Al Lattof broke the deadlock in Arlington's behalf to open the second half but Steve Norys countered with his second tally before Wachlin dealt the death blow with 13 minutes remaining in the game.

A couple of other favored teams also struggled Thursday. Hersey played Palatine to a 1-1 stalemate while Wheeling barely snuck past Buffalo Grove, 1-0.

Rolling Meadows also edged Hoffman Estaes 1-0 in a double overtime contest.

WHO ELSE BUT John Mantanes would knock in the Huskie goal as Hersey rallied before halftime. Randy Stewart had struck initially for the Pirates but Mantanes was served a beautiful corner kick by Kevin Hastings and headed it homeward for his 18th divisional goal of the campaign.

Hersey goalie Don King made 10 saves while a busy Mike Charlier in the Palatine net kicked away 26 shots.

Soccer headliner

The Hoffman Estates Adult Soccer Club will meet Chicago Sunday at 10 a.m. at the Union 76 field in Schaumburg. Hoffman is 4-0.

Wheeling upped their North Division slate to 9-0-1 only after Ramon Guerra broke a scoreless tie in the second half on a pass from John Byckowski.

"We struck hard," reported Wildcat coach Pete Fischbach, "But they had a new goalie named Bob Scott who played a superb game for them."

SCOTT WAS credited with 24 saves, compared with six attempted by the Bison.

Meadows nipped Hoffman when Gary Cook powered in a penalty shot after the two teams had played to a scoreless 0-0 tie in regulation time. Both clubs had entered the contest with identical 2-3-1 South Division slates.

The setback issued by Arlington to Fremd left the Vikes owning a 7-3 mark with only two loop contests to play. Even if the Wildcats should drop their remaining two bouts they would edge the defending champs by half a game.

In sophomore action Thursday the Hawks downed the Mustangs 3-1, Buffalo Grove stopped the Wildcats 2-1, Palatine shutout Hersey 3-0 and Fremd toppled the Redbirds 3-0.

Cougar's slow start shows bad carburetor symptoms

Doyle K. Getter

Your auto and you

My 1975 Cougar is hard to start in the morning and hesitates on takeoff when I do get it started. I also have a problem with the instrument panel The fuel, temp and oil needles occasionally go and stay far right for hours. Also, all panel lights blink in sync with the turn signals. Can you help?

Butch, Peoria, Ill.

Butch: The hard start and stall and stumble on acceleration is a carburetor problem. The choke and choke unloader probably are coming off too quick, giving you too lean a mixture. All carburetor adjustments should be set to specs. When gauges all go high together, is usually means the constant voltage regulator is going bad. It is not adjustable; it will have to be replaced.The blinking lights indicate a wiring problem There's a cross-feed someplace and it will take a mechanic with voltmeter and a lot of patience to find it.

I have a 1975 Vega with Holley carburetor. For the past several months, it takes three or four tries to start it in the morning. However, after it does start, it starts easily the rest of the day. I have a new coil and fuel pump and the carburetor, plugs and timing have all been checked.

Mr. W. R. C., Winter Park, Fla.

Leave your car with your dealer overnight so that he can check the carburetor before he attempts to start the car in the morning. I think he will find the bowl is leaking dry overnight.

I have a new Buick Regal V-6 I have heard of the new STP motor oil that is rated SE and surpasses manufacturers' requirements and they say it is good for 15,000 miles. I would like to use that oil but would change every 7,500 miles, as the Buick manual suggests. What do you say

John A. Rybak, Chicopee, Mass.

Mr. Rybak: You are right; follow the Buick manual on oil changes. The cheapest insurance you can ever buy on an engine is clean oil so change it as often as the manufacturer suggests. I know a number of good mechnics who still change their oil every 2,000 miles. I still change every 3,000.

I have a 1973 Pontiac Catalina with the 400 V-8 engine. When I start the engine in the morning and put the transmission in 'drive," the car won't move. After it has warmed up for several minutes, then it will take off. It will go right away without warmup if I put it in low gear. I had the transmission fluid changed and a new filter installed. Have you any idea what is wrong

Mr. C. M., Medford, Wis.

Mr. C. M. : It's an internal transmission problem, probably a leakage caused by a bad seal or O ring that is not allowing the transmission to build proper pressures in the drive circuit when the fluid is cold· It will have to be dismantled by a Hydra-Matic specialist to be corrected.

When my 1968 Plymouth Fury II with the 318 has set overnight or for a number of hours, it is hard to start. I have new ignition wires, distributor cap and a rebuilt carburetor. Also, when I get it started and want to back up, it will stall until the engine warms up pretty good and after that it is all right.

Walter Pasisz, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Mr. Pasisz: Despite your rebuilt carburetor, I still think the problem is in that area. Your choke adjustments and vacuum kick adjustments should be ckecked and set to recommended specs at a Chrysler-Plymouth dealership.

"There's not another book out that attempts to analyze Conditioned Races such as is found in THE GAME PLAN. Or, as much actual evidence of winning bets." Dick Fenlon, THE TIMES, Louisville, Ky., 8/16/75.

"Your book was so informative! We had a banner year at Sportsman's Park. THE GAME PLAN also works at Hollywood Park and Meadowlands." Claire Gress, TOP TROTTER WEEKLY LETTER, Sept., 1976.

"With the Yuletide only a furlong or so away, several horse-oriented tomes would make appropriate gifts (such as) JOHN STEWARD'S lively THE GAME PLAN FOR HANDICAPPING HARNESS RACES from VANTAGE PRESS." Don Zammarelli, Handicapper, HUDSON DISPATCH, Union City, N.J., DAILY RECORD, Morristown, N.J., Dec. 5, 1976.

DATSUN'S NEWEST Z-car, the 280-Z 2+2, is the latest example of what the company's engineers feel is the true sports car. The Z-car mania started with the introduction of the 240-Z, a two-seater.

New Datsun 280–Z rates three–star review

by DOYLE K. GETTER

Datsun of Japan has been tinkering with its popular "Z" cars again in a struggle to keep some balance between what U.S. safety, emissions and gas mileage rules demand and what Datsun engineers think a true sport car should be.

The Z-car mania in this country started with the introduction of the 240-Z, a small, very agile high-performance two-seater. That was followed by the heavier 260-Z and eventually by the slightly larger two-seat four-speed 280-Z.

The last change brought the 280-Z 2+2 so it would seem that Datsun's newest Z-car, no longer a small sport car, has evolved into a good looking, fine handling grand touring coupe.

AT 185.6 INCHES, the 2+2 is 12.2 inches longer than the two-seat 280-Z. Its wheelbase has been extended from 90.7 to 102.6 inches and its weight has increased from 2,692 to 2,840 pounds.

Both have the same 168 cubic inch fuel-injected six-cylinder engine and, for more fuel economy, a new option is being offered this year, an overdrive five-speed manual gearbox, which I tested on a 2+2.

The five-speed has th same ratios through the first four gears as the standard four-speed transmission. Its fifth gear has a ratio of 0.86:1, reducing engine speed at 60 miles an hour from 2,960 to 2,545 revolutions per minute. It only comes into use on the highway but is effective there.

I averaged 17.5 miles per gallon in 185 miles of normal city and suburban driving, all in the first four gears, and 26.4 miles per gallon on a 105 mile highway run in fifth gear at 55 miles an hour. It will burn either regular or no-lead gts.

Intricate marble inlays decorate the Preston Bradley Hall of the newly renovated Cultural Center.

Library Cultural Center opens Monday

A home for Chicago's arts

by SCOTT FOSDICK

If you happen to stroll down Michigan Avenue at around 11 a.m. Monday you may encounter a curious scene as you approach Washington Street:

Fifteen jesters, jugglers and clowns carousing on the sidewalks outside a mammoth 19th century building, with jazz bands and drum and bugle corps filling the streets with sound.

You may wonder aloud, "Has the whole town gone mad?"

VENTURING INSIDE this exquisitely domed structure only will confirm your suspicions. You'll see all manner of wondrous events, displays and entertainment: ethnic groups, rhythm bands, plays by the Peripatetic Task Force, dance by the Muntu Dance Theater, music by the Free Street Theater . . .

And you may run into Mayor Michael Bilandic eating birthday cake with Mrs. Richard J. Daley. They're even likely to offer you a piece.

No, it's not the resurrection of Mayor Daley they'll be celebrating, but something much more significant — the opening of the new Cultural Center of the Chicago Public Library.

The old library building has been turned into a cultural center in the fullest sense. Following the initial hoopla at the dedication Monday, the center won't just revert into a place to store books; it will continue to house a wide range of the performing arts as well.

MOST OF THE building has remained open throughout its three-year renovation. Monday the city will celebrate the 80th birthday of the library building, and re-dedicate it as the Cultural Center.

The story of this classic structure begins with the Great Fire of 1871, which destroyed every library in the city. News of the blaze sparked a movement in White carrara marble inlaid with colored glass and green Connemara marble form the banisters of a center staircase.

Paintings and sculpture fill one of several galleries and exhibit halls in the building.

Chicago theater waits for Jeff

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Hollywood may cherish its Oscar awards and Broadway undoubtedly loves its Tonys, but the attention of Chicago's theater community currently is focused on an event of far greater local importance: the announcement of the ninth annual Joseph Jefferson Awards.

These prestigious plaques will be awarded Monday night at the Drury Lane East theater at McCormick Place. Once again Channel 2 will televise the event live from 9 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., when the Jeff committee promises o be through handing out the awards.

This year the Jeff committee attended and judged a record number of 80 Actors Equity productions in the Chicago area. (Its non-Equity "Citations" are awarded each spring.) Forty-six of the productions judged received a nomination in at least one of the 19 categories.

THERE ARE more than 100 nominations in all for the Chicago area's growing number of actors, designers and companies.

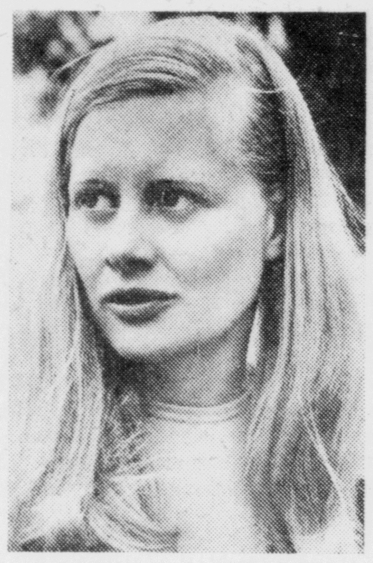
As with all awards of this type, there are those who annually criticize the choices and proclaim that such spurious ceremonies have nothing to do with true theater. In the heated struggle to win and keep an audience, however, a string of Jeff Awards can be a crucial aid to publicity. Given the economics of the situation, it's an honor few dare spurn.

The nominations this year are evenly divided between the Chicago stage's two factions: the insurgent off-Loop theaters on the North Side, and the more traditional Loop and suburban theaters.

THE NOW-DEFUNCT Arlington Park Theatre received five nominations for its final season of plays. The Madison Square Gardens Corp., owners of the theater and adjacent Arlington Park Hilton and racetrack, closed the 700-seat theater in May after years of financial troubles and mysterious bombings by alleged syndicate hit-men.

Arlington Park's final production, "The Big Knife," received three nominations: one to Cynthia Baker Johnson for the best actress in a cameo role, and two for best guest artist, to James Farentino and Michele Lee.

Other Arlington Park nominations are for best actor in a cameo role, Damon Reicheg for "Barefoot in the Park," and Colleen Dewhurst for best guest artist in "An Almost Perfect Person."



SHIRLEY KNIGHT

THE HIGH-BUDGET Academy Festival Theater in Lake Forest received the greatest number of Jeff nominations with 16. Most of its nominations are grouped in just a few categories, however, so it probably won't receive the most awards Monday.

The Academy Festival Theater has already cinched one award, with Shirley Knight, star of "The Landscape of the Body," already the announced winner in the guest artist category. (The Jeff Committee announces this award in advance so the winner will be sure to attend.)

The odds-on favorite to walk away with the most awards is the dynamic St. Nicholas Theater, off-Loop home of David Mamet. Mamet won a special playwright award at last year's ceremony for his hit, "American Buffalo."

This year St. Nicholas tied for the second largest number of nominations with two other companies, Body Politic and The Goodman, each with 13. St. Nicholas' nominations are spread among 10 different categories, giving it the greatest mathematical chance for success.

FOLLOWING IS A list of the nominations for the major Jeff awards:

European art exhibit at museum

Loose stones, a flying machine and a glass igloo are focal points in "Europe in the Seventies: Aspects of Modern Art," a new exhibit at the Art Institute of Chicago.

The exhibit includes approximately 60 objects by 23 European artists, and is the first major American museum exhibition exclusively devoted to developments in contemporary European art from the mid 60s to the present. The exhibit will be at the Art Institute through Nov. 27.

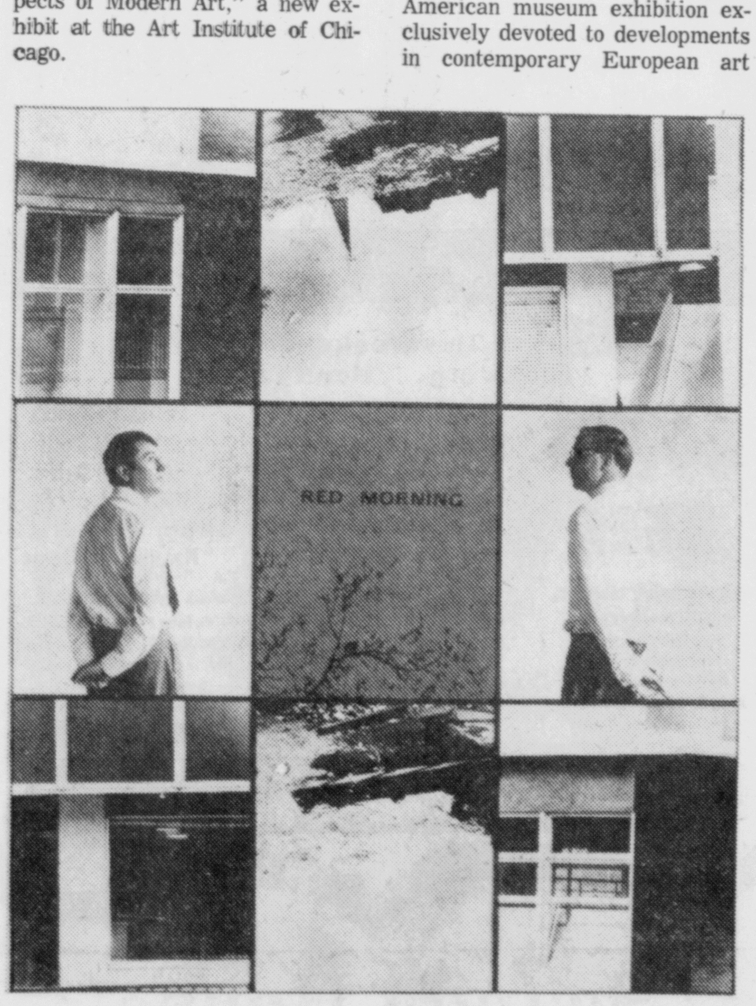
Most of the artists have had distinguished reputations in Europe for 10 years or more and the exhibit will emphasize the artist's individuality rather than his or her country's artistic development.

THE ARTISTS HAVE in many cases created pieces especially for Chicago, and each is represented by a major example of his or her work.

The exhibit deals with reality and the innumerable ways of treating, viewing or evaluating it; the results range from Belgian artist Panamarenko's 33-foot "Flying Wing" to a series of stark building photos by Bernd and Hilla Becher of Germany.

English artist Richard Long expresses his sense of reality through floor sculptures like "Stone Circle," a seemingly random arrangement of Tennessee stones that are gathered from nature and resituated in indoor settings. Long's Chicago works also include photographs and map collages of his outdoor sculptures and "California Wood Circle," a collection of approximately 200 pieces of wood.

Admission to "Europe in the Seventies: Aspects of Modern Art" is included in the Art Institute's $2 recommended admission fee. For those who do not pay the front door admission, the exhibit charge is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children, students and senior citizens.



British artists Gilbert and George have created photo sculptures consisting of up to 100 individually framed photographs of the sculptors and their ambience.

'Oh, God!' Burns really a charmer

by DANN GIRE

"Oh, God!" starring George Burns, John Denver and Teri Garr; directed by Carl Reiner; produced by Jerry Weintraub; by Warner Brothers. Rated PG.

A clever script and the amiable charm of George Burns makes "Oh, God!" one of the season's most enjoyable and entertaining films.

God doesn't like what He sees on Earth and decides the people need a message of inspiration. So God comes to the world in human form (Burns) and taps a young, up-and-coming assistant manager at the Good World Mart as his messenger.

The manager, Jerry Landers (John Denver) reluctantly agrees to spread God's message to the masses at the risk of losing his job, family and sanity. But as God tells him in Burns' raspy voice: "Lose a job, save a world. Not a bad deal."

CARL REINER'S direction excels in showing how the humdrum lives of Jerry Landers and his wife (Teri Garr) are changed by extraordinary circumstances. Reiner, who gave us the original Dick Van Dyke Show, has an uncanny talent for extracting a carload of comedy from average persons in unaverage situations.

Reiner has less success with God, who is 10 per cent profound, 10 per cent funny and 80 per cent pure charm in the George Burns tradition. One hardly would imagine God as an entity given to one-liners and punch lines, but Burns delivers them with style.

Landers asks God if he is to give the world messages, why can't he have them written down.

"After all, you gave Moses tablets," Landers says.

Review/movies

"Moses had a bad memory," God counters.

WHILE MOST OF the humor runs along these lines, God does interject relevant messages about mankind, pollution and the general bad state of the world. He instructs Landers to tell the people their fate rests in their own hands — they alone have the power to make the world work, as He intended.

Denver, appearing in his first film role, relies less on acting ability than his own personality and provides a believable version of a grocery manager, one who could be in any food store.

"Oh, God!" is well paced and leaves little room for boredom. There are visual gags as well as jokes, and just when things might calm down for Landers, God pops up again in one of his many disguises, a bellhop, taxi driver and garbage collector, among others.

The only things wrong with "Oh, God!" are inconsistencies in the script and some badly framed footage.

Landers causes such problems for himself that he lands in court on a slander suit against a powerful minister. Landers' only witness for his defense is — you guessed it — God, whom he summons to the stand. But by appearing before the court, God violates the rules of conduct He set earlier — that He works subtly through messengers and does not perform miracles personally because "they're too flashy and they upset the natural balance." But then, never let consistency get in the way of a good ending.

The film at times borders dangerously on hokiness, but apparently the temptation to have God walk off into a sunset was too strong for the writers.

Regardless, "Oh, God!" is pleasant entertainment and a must for George Burns fans of any age. Even atheists should enjoy it.

'Valentino' flops

"Valentino," Starring Rudolf Nureyev, Leslie Caron and Carol Kane; directed by Ken Russell; produced by Robert Chartoff and Irwin Winkler; released by United Artists. Rated R.

'Valentino" is a flashy piece of trash purporting to trace the tragic life of the famous silent screen sex symbol, Rudolph Valentino.

In the opening, Valentino's body lies in state while outside the building hordes of fans and curiosity seekers riot to get in, probably wanting a chance to ask Rudolf Nurevyev how he ever got tangled up with this picture in the first place.

It's hard to tell if Nureyev just cannot act or if Russell told him the wrong way to act. At any rate, Nureyev's Valentino sounds like an effeminate Bela Lugosi who looks like Joel Grey's brother in "Cabaret."

LESLIE CARON was cast in a seemingly needless role of a woman in Valentino's life who is always on the stage and always overacting to gain attention. It's the worst overacting job in modern cinema.

Only Carol Kane (of "Hester Street" fame) is good in her role as a flaky girlfriend who holds Valentino's interest for a brief time.

Most of Nureyev's time in the film is spent getting irate because someone questions his sexuality every 10 minutes. He even challenges a newspaper reporter to a boxing match because of an article that insinuated the Shiek might be a little "funny."

And why not, for it gives Russell a chance to make a ripoff of "Rocky" and give the picture its only exciting scene.

DESPITE THE absence of talent in acting, writing and directing, "Valentino" offers a rich visual treat for the moviegoer. Russell's one ability seems to be showing the sleazy, seamier side of life.

If you watch films only for the sleazy, seamier side of life, see "Valentino" before it gets to television, where most of these scenes will definitely be edited.

"Valentino" is a lot like a slick romance magazine — neatly packaged trash.

Library Cultural Center a home for city's arts

Great Britain to donate books to replace those that burned. Among the donors were Robert Browning, Charles Darwin, Benjamin Disraeli, Thomas Huxley, John Ruskin, Herbert Spencer, Alfred Lord Tennyson and Queen Victoria.

Originally the collection was housed in a converted water tank on LaSalle Street. But on Oct. 9, 1897, the newly created Library Board dedicated the new public library at 78 E. Washington St. It was a monument to permanence, constructed of granite, Bedford limestone, marble, wrought iron and bronze, materials that could stand the heat of another great fire.

Now the major reference collection of the Chicago Public Library is housed at 425 N. Michigan Ave., across the street from the Wrigley Building. Ten years ago a task force recommended the old building, guilty of numerous code violations, be torn down. That proposal was rejected, and extensive plans to renovate the building were adopted.

THE RENOVATIONS cost $12 million dollars, six times what it cost to construct the building in the first place.

For a city sorely lacking facilities for the performing arts, the most welcome feature of the Cultural Center has to be the new 295-seat theater on the second floor, just off the Randolph Street entrance.

The theater will be the winter home of the free-wheeling Free Street Theater, and in the coming weeks and months also will provide space for cultural events: lecture previews of the Lyric Opera, concerts, an ethnic arts festival, children's theater and a "dance gala."

The best part about the new Cultural Center is this: It's free. Every last concert and exhibit, the theater performances, even the birthday cake, are as gloriously free to the public as the books themselves.

So don't be piqued if you bump into a few clowns or tuba players downtown Monday. There's reason in their revels.

"You Light Up My Life" — Didi Conn shines as an aspiring singer-songwriter who muddles through romantic and career conflicts and comes out a winner in the end. Old fashioned elements reworked in a "now" setting. (PG)

"Valentino" — Ballet star Rudolf Nureyev stars with Michelle Phillips as the great Valentino and Natasha Ramova, one of the principal women in the life of the silent screen idol. (R).

"Lincoln Conspiracy" — An imagination stretcher supposedly based on "new evidence" that Abraham Lincoln was assassinated as the result of a conspiracy headed by high government officials. (PG).

"Kentucky Fried Movie" — A series of disgustingly hilarious skits on the various media, independently produced by Kentucky Fried Theatre, a Los Angeles revue similar to Second City. It's funnier than the "The Groove Tube" and even bawdier. Sure to offend many. (R)

Born-again B.J. Thomas faces world with new hits

by ROB PATTERSON

Everybody knows the liquid baritone of B. J. Thomas. It first nuzzled the public eardrum in 1965 with a resonant version of Hank Williams' super-classic "I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry."

Since then, B. J. has sold more than 20 million records — including such all-time hum-alongs as "Hooked on a Feeling," "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head" and "Another Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song." Perhaps the consummate American pop singer, B. J. belts them out of juke-boxes from Brooklyn, N.Y., to Butte, Mont.

What most persons don't know is that three years ago B. J. Thomas decided to quit the business.

"I WAS A drug addict," he explains, "and everything that could have gone wrong went wrong. I really wasn't having so much trouble career-wise, but I had a lot of trouble with my life. The summer of '75 I'd just had a two million seller with '. . .Wrong Song,' but I was so down, I said 'Here's another two million records and I still don't feel it.' So I quit."

B. J. Thomas on drugs? It didn't seem to fit. Not from one of the nicest, seemingly unaffected guys in pop music.

"I got into all kinds of pills — the ups and the downs — and cocaine quite heavily and, of course, marijuana." Add to that a loose drinking arm and four packs of cigarets a day, "and after a while you begin to have such a miserable time that what keeps you into the drugs is that it's the only moment over years at a time when you say, 'Hey, I felt good then, I can't let it go!

"I felt I couldn't go back to singing because I was blaming it on the music business instead of what was really wrong, which was a spiritual, soulful deficiency I lived with. I was separated from my wife at the time, had O.D.'d a couple of times, and was at the point where I was just waitin' to die because I was either gonna die or get off the drugs, and I saw no hope of gettin' off them."

BUT AS HIS 1971 hit, "Mighty Clouds of Joy," almost prophesized, hlep soon came rollin' in.

"My wife was living back in Texas and had become a Christian. Through her prayers I was finally led to come home. It was just a matter of days before I sat sown with Jim and Michael Reeves, the people who led my wife Gloria to the Lord. We talked for hours and I accepted the Lord. It was a wonderful, miraculous time."

DISCovering pop

And how is born-again B. J. Thomas today? Just fine, thank you. He kicked off his comeback in style with, "Home Where I Belong," an album that just hit number one on the gospel charts.

"Through that record the Lord helped, and we got a million dollar contract with MCA. Now, just because you become a Christian don't mean you'll get rich — I spend a lot to make a lot — but the Lord will take care of you and make you happy."

Performing recently before a capacity crowd at Six Flags Over Texas, B. J. was a man at home. I was impressed by the way he satisfied the young screamers with hints of sincere sexuality, the more musically concerned with his rough, cooly-absorbing vocals, and just about everyone else with an energetic performance that left them yelling for more. Even the bit of Christian rock that he threw in had me (a cynic by profession) nodding in approval. A brand new man with that same old appeal.

A grateful B. J. admits, "I really feel like as far as life goes, I have a rip-off. What I have to do for a living, I really love to do. I know a lot of simply, if not overly-modestly.

THE DISCO phenomenon dances on. Call it what you will (I find most of it synchopated succotash), the scene is as lively as a mosquito swarm in summer.

Singer-Grace Jones recently premiered her act in a New York disco by riding a motorcycle across a ramp to her stage at the center of the dance floor — an act that should leave Evel Knievel with more than assault charges to worry about.

An expert in judo and karate (and fancier of sleek leather outfits), Grace also might be able to teach Evel a few things about fisticuffs, too. Swinging Tarzan-style across the crowd for her next show, Grace seems to be living up to her "super-star" predictions in style. She sings all right, too.

Though every big movie theme is covered by a slew of artists, it's the original that usually hits. The current exception is "Star Wars." The snappy, "bleep-bleep" dancing version by Meco has conquered the London Symphony Orchestra original and topped the charts. I asked Meco Monardo, producer and session man with Tommy James, Gloria Gaynor and Carol Douglas, the reason for his success.

BECAUSE IT'S the best," he said simply, if not overly-modestly.

A confirmed sci-fi freak, he saw "Star Wars" its first day of release. After three sittings, it all computed — make the music contemporary. He sold the idea to Milleneum Records' president Jimmy Ienner, and recorded it in two and a half weeks. Now he and the two-month-old label have their first hit. I must confess, I like his version better, too.

Watch out for the Russian hustle. The Ritchie Family ("Brazil," "Best Disco in Town") was the first American pop group to perform on Soviet television. The performance originated at Poland's Sopot Festival, where the grateful audience gave them a 15 minute standing ovation. The question now is: Will Cyrus Vance dance at the SALT talks?

Chez Paul falls short of perfection

Bill o' fare

Featuring:
Chez Paul

Like everything else, it's a question of priorities.

If the prospect of seafood crepes smotheredin lobster sauce, cordial, formally attired waiters and fresh linen tablecloths is enough to produce a "What's money?" (attitude for one evening, at least), then you may be a candidate for a $60 dinner at Chez Paul in Rolling Meadows. But if you expect near perfection to accompany the saumon en croute and the steep prices, chances are you'll be disappointed.

The Rolling Meadows Chez Paul, a large modern structure that belies its plush "Old World" interior, opened its doors last summer. It had an illustrious model to follow: the Chicago branch had been serving rich, traditional French cuisine in the old Robert Hall McCormick mansion for 31 years.

HEAD CHEF Jean Louis Jalouneix did make a few concessions to his suburban clientele: the prices were lowered slightly and English translations were added to the menu. The decor, an intriguing combination of dark paneling, tapestries and white French provincial woodwork, was planned to be a bit less formal than that of the mansion.

While the menu itself was trimmed, the choices still require some concentrated decision-making. The field includes 19 hot and cold appetizers and 22 entrees, ranging from broiled whitefish at $7.25 to rack of lamb for two, $26.50, plus two or three daily specials.

While the kitchen has experimented with "la novelle cuisine," a style of cooking that leans away from rich sauces and excessive use of butter, most of the entrees are traditional French.

Our young waiter made several helpful suggestions, though his pseudo-French accent was disconcerting. I took his advice and started my meal with the crepe farcie deauville, $2.75, a small, light crepe filled with scallops, crabmeat and shrimps and covered with a creamy lobster sauce: almost lukewarm, but exquisite just the same.

My friend opted for the pate de canard truffle, $2.25. While the pate itself was attractively prepared with small gelatin cubes and tiny pickles, the truffles, a rare and expensive type of mushroom, were all but invisible.

AFTER OUR BISQUE de crevettes au cognac, $2.25, a smooth shrimp bisque, and the consomme diablotin, $1.75, a sherry consomme, we decided on two special Chez Paul salads. While the avocado vinaigrette, $2, was rather nondescript, the Chez Paul salad, $2.75, was a delicious combination of bibb lettuce, hearts of palm and avocado and tomatoes.

I chose the coq au vin, $7.25, a traditional French dish served with a zesty red wine sauce, onions and mushrooms. My friend decided on the special of the day, fresh salmon wrapped in a pastry crust, $10.95. Both entrees included a green salad as well as the vegetable and potato du jour. Ours were potatoes Maxine, sliced thin and cooked in butter, and tomatoes provencale, broiled and served with bread crumbs and a taste of garlic.

In addition to the vegetable du jour, diners can choose from several a la carte selections. One of the most unusual is the salsifis persillade, $2.25. Salsifis, our waiter informed us, is a cross between hearts of palm and celery, with a taste similar to that of a white potato. It is grown only in Europe, and while my serving may have been canned, it was a delicious alternative to standard vegetable fare.

CHEZ PAUL'S DESSERTS range from a cheese selection, $1.75, to a souffle for two, $7.50. We took a fattening middleroute with the pastry selection, $2. My cheesecake, though garnished with several gorgeous strawberries, was heavy and dry; my friend had better luck with a fruit-filled Napoleon.

Dinner at Chez Paul includes several undeniably chic touches: our brandy was flamed tableside in an elaborate routine that elicited oohs and ahhs from nearby diners. But there also was an annoying clamor from the kitchen, only a few feet away from our table, and the large, airy dining room didn't facilitate intimate tete-a-tetes.

Perfection, it's not. But if you're looking for a night on the town that features "downtown" food and atmosphere in your own backyard, Chez Paul is a good place to start.

Weddings

Valerie Jean Reinier–Timothy J. Carson

The bride was the soloist at the wedding of Valerie Jean Reinier and Timothy J. Carson. The morning of the Sept. 10 ceremony in St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, Valerie taped the music, accompanied by her mother as organist, to be played later that afternoon.

Valerie is the daughter of the Wayne L. Reiniers of Greeley, Kan. She and Tim, son of the Don B. Carsons of Mount Prospect, met at the University of Kansas where she graduated this spring and Tim was doing graduate work. He is a graduate of Prospect High School and the University of Illinois now working for Architects and Planners in Schaumburg. Valerie works for Kanematsu-Gosho, Arlington Heights.

Their candlelight, double ring ceremony was followed by a dinner reception with dancing at Rolling Green Country Club.

AN IVORY SATIN gown with Alencon lace accents dotted with seed pearls was worn by the bride, along with a cathedral-length veil edged in lace and attached to a Juliet cap of lace and pearls. She carried orchids, stephanotis and greens.

Her sister Laurie of Lawrence, Kan., was maid of honor in a gold knit jersey gown and carrying bronze and gold mums with lime fuji mums. The bridesmaids, in identical ensembles, were Valerie's cousin, Lisa Reinier, Kansas City, Mo.; Sharon Booker, Wichita; and Diane Prather, Houston.

Lt. Thomas Schmidt, Tinker AFB, Okla., served as Tim's best man. Groomsmen were David Lundstedt, Schaumburg, David Timson, Phoenix, and Douglas Johnson, Lincoln, Neb. The guests were seated by Michael Tolzien, Arlington Heights, and Michael Sneeden, Des Moines.

The newlyweds are now at home in Hoffman Estates.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy J. Carson

Judith A. Snip – George Spanske

A couple who works for Wieboldt's, the bride at the Distribution Center in Des Plaines and the groom at the Randhurst store, was married Aug. 27 in Palatine United Methodist Church.

The bride is the former Judith A. Snip, daughter of the Floyd Snips of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, but formerly of Palatine. The groom is George P. Spanske, son of the George C. Spanskes of Mount Prospect.

Jacki Snip was her sister's maid of honor for the 4:30 p.m. double-ring ceremony. Another sister, Joanne Strong, and Elaine Petersen, Palatine, and Jane Hoover, Plano, Texas, were bridesmaids. The groom chose Mike O'Connell, Arlington Heights, as best man, with his cousin, Edward Fraase, Woodstock, Dan Strong, the bride's brother-in-law, and Richard Brown, Park Ridge, as groomsmen.

A RECEPTION and dinner for 100 guests followed at Old Orchard Country Club. Among them was the bride's grandfather, Julian DeWindt of Sparta, Mich.

The couple honeymooned on Long Boat Key, Fla., and are making their home in Arlington Heights.

Judith is a graduate of Palatine High and Northern Illinois University. George graduated from Prospect High and North Park College.

Sandra Lyn Jahnke–John A. Schlickman

The Sept. 3 wedding ceremony of an Arlington Heights couple, Sandra Lyn Jahnke and John Andrew Schlickman, was officated by Pastor Richard Jessen of Our Saviour Lutheran Church, where the marriage took place, along with Father Pat Render of St. Viator High School and the groom's uncle, Dick Muraski, a permanent deacon of the Diocese of Kansas City.

Following the 5:30 p.m. rites, Sandra and John greeted 225 guests at a candlelight dinner at Elmhurst Country Club.

The bride, daughter of the Kenneth Jahnkes, and groom, son of the Eugene Schlickmans, are making their home in Evanston after a week's honeymoon in San Francisco.

SANDRA'S TWO SISTERS and John's two sisters were bridal attendants, Ruth Jahnke as maid of honor and Debra Harth, Steeleville, Ill., and Mary and Monica Schlickman as bridesmaids. The four were gowned in sea mist green and carried white carnations, apricot roses and baby's breath, the maid of honor adding English ivy to her bouquet.

Sandra's white knit jersey gown, trimmed with Venise lace, was complemented by a 100-year-old wedding crown handmade in Sweden. Her veil was fingertip length, and she carried white orchids, apricot roses, stephanotis and baby's breath with English ivy.

Chuck Shulock, Berkeley, Calif., was John's best man, with his brother, Stephen Schlickman, David Wiltse of Buffalo Grove and Dan Custer of Oakland, Calif., serving as groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Schlickman

THE BRIDE'S COUSIN, Penny Thom, 4, of Chicago was flower girl in a white organza dress, carrying a white basket of flowers to match the others, and Jay Schlickman, 9, of Rockford, the groom's cousin, was ring bearer.

Special guests at the double ring service were the groom's grandparents, the Leander Schlickmans of Rockford, and the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Otto Jahnke of Oceanside, Calif.

Since attending Eastern Illinois University, Harper College and St. Francis School of Nursing, Sandra is now working at Evanston Hospital. John, a graduate of St. Viator High and Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., took his first year of law school at Hastings College of Law, San Francisco, and is now at the University of Chicago Law School.

The doctor says

Colon muscles can cramp, cause pain

Medically speaking is there such a thing as spasms? I have heard many doctors use the term for muscle strain, pressure, etc. Being confined to a wheel chair and having a spastic colon I get pain at times in the belt line or above with back trouble.

You better believe there is such a thing as spasm — which means shortening as occurs with a muscle cramp.

Most people can see the shortening of the calf muscle when it cramps or is in spasm. A similar thing happens to a person with a spasm of the esophagus, the stomach or the colon.

The entire digestive tube from mouth to rectum has an inner wall of smooth muscle. Food doesn't just drop from your mouth to the rectum by the force of gravity. It is moved along by the milking action of the contraction and relaxation of these muscles.

The small intestine in adult life is about 15 feet long and the large intestine about 5 feet long. The food residue is moved along this 20 foot stretch by the contraction and relaxation of muscles in a rhythmic manner.

If these muscles overcontract or cramp it is a spasm, and as you should know it can hurt. The spasm can be so severe it shuts off the intestine entirely, trapping gas above the spasm which leads to distention and more pain.

What you eat and drink affects the normal colon contractions. These are involuntary muscles meaning that you can't control them like you might those in your arms. they do respond to reflexes, chemicals and bulk.

A friend recently told me they read about an operation to reduce the size of the breasts. Is this true? Where might I find information regarding this?

I have such a difficult time finding clothes to fit. Also my posture is affected because I try to minimize my bust by not standing erect. I am not a heavy person in any other way.

Yes, it is done. Except in unusual circumstances I don't think it is a very good idea. And I don't think it is wise to develop poor posture to try to hide your breasts either. That can lead to other problems. Unless they are so heavy that shoulder straps cause you problems I would think you might just try to think positively about yourself. Think of it as a sign of a good figure. In brief if you've got it, flaunt it. You might be better off than having surgery.

If you can't accept that, first talk it over with your family doctor. If you convince him you would be better off, then he might want to refer you to a plastic surgeon in your area who does good work.

Most surgeons do good work but not all cases are successful and you might not be so pleased with the results afterward. If you have a misconception about yourself or have some emotional hangups, breast surgery may not be your answer either but may simply complicate matters.

A hint to remember what's in the recipe

Dear Roberta: I can usually count on the phone to ring while I'm in the midst of cooking. After the phone call, I often forget what I've already put in, and what I still have to add. How do experienced cooks solve this problem? —Marie Preston Forgetting which step comes next happens to many cooks who are diverted from working on a dish. Here, it's the kids — not knowing important work is under way — who interrupt such concentration. You might try this method of "remembering," which I've watched a friend use. She lines up everyting to go into a dish to the left of the main utensil used to prepare it. When an ingredient has been added, she places a reminder that she has finished with it — like sugar canister, eggshells or spice bottle — to the right. After an interruption, a glance at what's collected on the right signals what to do next.

Kidstuff: An oversized tray is the perfect place to set up jigsaw puzzles. A tray can be moved from the dining table when it's time for a meal, without diseassembling puzzle parts that have been put together. At bedtime, an unfinished puzzle on the tray can go up to a child's room. Also, when someone in the family is convalescing in bed, the tray can become an all-purpose activity board. It's dandy for games in the sick one's room, as the rim of the tray stops playing cards or small toys from sliding into the sheets.

Weddings

Valerie Clark– Gary Pemberton

Gary Pemberton, son of the Richard Pembertons of Hoffman Estates, and his bride, the former Valerie Clark, are living in Fort Worth, Tex., where the bridegroom is associated with Equitable Assurance Co.

Gary and Valerie are graduates of Northern Illinois University and before that he attended Conant High and Harper College.

The bride, daughter of the Kenneth Clarks, Pontiac, Ill., wore an ivory organza gown trimmed in tucked organza and Venise lace for the 2 p.m. ceremony Sept. 10 in the First United Methodist Church of Pontiac. She completed her ensemble with a matching lace-edged veil attached to a Juliet headpiece of lace. Her colonial bouquet contained dusty pink carnations, white roses and dried gypsophilia.

HER FOUR attendants were gowned alike in dusty rose crepe with matching picture hats, each accented with an ivory rose. Their bouquets were of white carnations, pink roses and dried gypsophilia.

The bride's cousin, Janelle Burger, Kankakee, was maid of honor. The couple's sisters, Lynda Pemberton and Jeanne Clark, and Teresa Koehler, McLean, Ill., were bridesmaids.

Richard Pemberton, Lubbock, Tex., served as his brother's best man, with Terrence Kukla, Schaumburg, and the bride's brothers, Jerrold and Kenneth Clark, as groomsmen.

The Kenneth Clarks hosted a home reception following their daughter's wedding.

Come to First's Autumn auto loan special where loan rates are tumbling down

It's true, while everything else is going up, the Autumn leaves and First's new auto loan rates have come tumbling down. The First National Bank of Des Plaines has lowered auto loan rates on all new 1977 and 1978 models.

And that's not all. At First, you see the full loan cost — to the penny — before you sign. No surprises afterwards. And we'll fit your repayment schedule to your budget.

You can also count on First for low cost credit life insurance and monthly payments that can be automatically deducted from your checking account. You can even arrange a loan before you go car-shopping so you can grab a good deal on the spot.

With the way things have been going up lately, it's about time something came down. So stop in soon and take advantage of it. See us for low used car loan rates, too.

NBC planning to start news magazine

Newly appointed NBC network president Robert E. Mulholland is adamant about creating a prime time news magazine show for the network.

The lead contender for such an endeavor, as far as Mulholland is concerned, is NBC's current "Weekend" news magazine, an excellent 90-minute program which airs the first Saturday of each month at 10:30 p.m.

The name would have to be changed, the show would be condensed to 60 minutes and more timely reports would have to be included if "Weekend" were converted to a weekly prime time news magazine, he said.

THERE'S A good chance that "Weekend" host Lloyd Dobyns would be part of the new project, directed as competition to CBS' "60 Minutes," which Mulholland is hoping to launch next fall.

Scheduling the news magazine would be the biggest problem, he said. "60 Minutes," the undisputed leader in prime time news magazines, runs in a strong, secure time period against two children's shows (NBC's "Wonderful World of Disney" and ABC's "Nancy Drew/Hardy Boys Mystery") at 6 p.m. on Sundays.

NBC wouldn't think of pitting its new contender against the champion, but there is concern about breaking up regular programming with a news magazine during the week.

"it will be up to the news department to produce the show," said Mulholland, who was in Chicago this week. "I think we should just stop talking about it and do it."

ON OTHER subjects, Mulholland said that the NBC anchors and sports hosts for the 1980 Moscow Olympics will "probably evolve" from the network's "Sports World" show which premieres in January. The new show, which will be an overview, magazine-styled account of sports competition similar to the current "Wide World of Sports" and "Sports Spectacular" weekend shows on the other two networks, is being developed as a replacement for NBC's "Grandstand" show.

The new program will serve as a platform for developing new NBC sports personalities comparable to ABC's Howard Cosell and Jim McKay and CBS' Pat Summerall.

Mulholland also said:

• Comedian Richard Pryor is still under a seven-year contract with NBC for specials even though the last episode of his short-lived variety show airs Thursday at 9 p.m. Mulholland believes the show and the artist could have developed into something big given the time, and he does not believe the network unnecessarily censored the show during the five weeks it aired despite Pryor's public complaints.

• Reviewing NBC's new season shows, Mulholland admits that "Big Hawaii" isn't doing well and may soon follow "Sanford Arms" to the television graveyard. "CHiPs" and "Rosetti and Ryan " are gaining momentum, he says, and it's too early to tell about "Oregon Trail." Mulholland believes, however, that the new "James at 15" which premieres as a regular show Oct. 27, will set a new trend in television comedy drama.

• Back-up shows in the till for mid-season include "Quark" about an outer space garbage collector, "What Ever Happened to the Class of '65?", the return of "Baa Baa Black Sheep" and the possible serialization of "Laugh-in" and "Police Story", which now run periodically in prime time.

WHAT THE RATINGS TELL:

• CBS had the number one show last week for the first time in the new television season with its "Elvis in Concert" special which garnered a 33 rating and 50 per cent of the television audience. The rest of last week's top ten were 2: "Laverne and Shirley," 3: "Happy Days," 4: "Charlie's Angels," 5: Sunday's baseball playoffs, 6: "All in the Family," 7: "Three's Company," 8: "60 Minutes," 9: "The Betty White Show" and 10: "Six Million Dollar Man."

LLOYD DOBYNS
of "WEEKEND"

• It may not last long, and then again, you never know about these things. But, so far in October, NewsCenter Five, the longtime third place trailer in 10 p.m. newscasts, has clinched first place in the ratings. For the week of Sept. 29 to Oct. 6, Channel 5 had an average 16.7 rating and 31 per cent of the Chicago area audience compared to Channel 7's 16 rating and 27 per cent share of the audience and Channel 2's 14.8 rating and 24 per cent share.

Channel 2's low ratings at 10 p.m. have to be contributed in part to the poor lead-ins that the CBS prime time shows are offering the newscast. NBC has had some well-rated specials since the start of the season and certainly the recent baseball play-offs provided an excellent lead-in for the local newscast.

It's really too early to tell who will command first place in ratings at 10 p.m. this fall. The spot has belonged to Channel 7 in the past, but their lead has narrowed considerably during the past year. With a fierce advertising war going on between the three news shows, anything can happen between now and the end of November.

TV NOTES:

• There are rumblings over at WBBM, Channel 2, that news director Jay Feldman will follow the station's former general manager, Neil Derrough, to WCBS-TV in New York. No one is saying anything at the moment.

• A couple of items out of WFLD, Channel 32. Norman Lear's "Fernwood 2-Night" talk show spoof did well enough in the ratings this summer to warrant its return at the beginning of next year and will probably air just after "Forever Fernwood." The summer show, which ran for 13 weeks, stars Martin Mull as host of the sofa-talk atrocity.

The independent television station has also agreed to pay an estimated $17,000 per episode, a Chicago record for half-hour shows, for the reruns of "Happy Days." They will probably start in 1979. The station will also pick up reruns of "The Six Million Dollar Man."

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• The third game in the World Series airs at 7 p.m. on Channel 7.

• "Logan's Run" switches to Fridays at 8 p.m. on Channel 2 when a time traveler from the pre-War era ventures into the 24th Century to learn how his civilization might prevent the coming holocaust.

• A special debate on nuclear power, featuring a host of experts and vocal opponents on either side of the line, is featured in "Advocates" at 9 p.m. on Channel 11. It is followed at 10 p.m. by "Dick Cavett" whose guests are husband-wife singers James Taylor and Carly Simon. The season premiere of "Visions," airs on WTTW at 10:30 p.m. with the melancholy story of an Iowa family's reunion.

Readers do the 'impossible'

Today's hand appeared as one of our July articles. South's four-club bid was a slam invitation and North's four-diamond call was a below game acceptance. South felt that when he made a slam try, he had done all he could. He merely rebid to four spades, which North elected to pass.

Six spades won't make against a diamond lead even if trumps break and we stated erroneously that even five spades would be impossible against the actual trump break.

We were way too strong when we used, "Impossible," as several readers have pointed out to us.

Actually, declarer can and really should make five odd against that 5-0 break. He either wins the first diamond or ducks. That makes no difference. Assuming he ducks he wins the next diamond, cashes dummy's king of spades and gets the bad news, ruffs a third diamond, cashes the top hearts and top clubs, ruffs his last club, and leads a third heart.

West has to ruff and lead up to the ace-queen-jack-nine of spades.

Football got its kick from game like soccer

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Robyn Millard, 12, of Colorado Springs, Colo., for her question:

HOW DID FOOTBALL ORIGINATE?

Today just about every high school and college fields a football team. The game of football is enthusiastically enjoyed by millions who watch the game in person and many millions more who watch the competition on television. Professional football expands the national and international interest in the game.

The exciting game of football started in the mid-1800s when college students in the Eastern United States played a game similar to soccer. A round ball was kicked by opposing members as each side tried to get it across different goal lines. Thirty or more players often were used on each team.

Stricter rules later were adopted and schools began organizing teams. On Nov. 6, 1869, the first official college football game was played in New Brunswick, N.J., between Rutgers and the College of New Jersey, which now is Princeton University. Rutgers won 6 to 4.

In an 1874 game between Harvard and McGill University of Montreal, the visiting Canadians picked up the ball at one point and ran with it, instead of simply kicking it. Everybody liked the innovation and running, blocking and tackling were added to the kicking.

A first down rule, allowing a team to keep possession of the ball while continuing to advance, was adopted in 1880. At the same time the size of the team was reduced from 15 players to 11.

Although kicking continued to be an important part of the game, by 1900 running and blocking was used mostly.

Football was an extremely rough game in its early days. In 1905 President Theodore Roosevelt threatened to ban the game because of the violence. Some schools went as far as prohibiting the game because of the frequent injuries.

In 1906 coaches and faculty members changed the rules to take some of the stress away from running and blocking. The forward pass was added to the game.

Football's first forward pass was thrown for an 18-yard gain by Wesleyan University in its game against Yale in 1906. Coach Knute Rockne made the pass a national favorite when his lightweight Notre Dame team beat a stronger and heavier Army team 35 to 13 in 1913 with the addition of sensational passing. Passing made it possible for lighter, smaller and faster players to compete successfully.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Robert Main, 11, of Tulsa, Okla., for his question:

WHAT ARE THE SEVEN SEAS?

A quick check of any world map will show you there are a lot more than seven seas around. You hit that number around Europe and Africa alone: the Baltic, North, Mediterranean, Black, Caspian, Red and Arabian seas.

A great many people believe the term Seven Seas refers to the North and South Pacific, the North and South Atlantic, the Arctic, Antarctic and the Indian oceans. They are wrong.

The term Seven Seas actually has no literal meaning. It was an expression that was used long before all of the world's oceans were known to exist. The expression means, simply enough, all of the seas and oceans of the world.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

A 'weed' that knows its place

Like the petunia, the violet and the morning glory, all of which self-seed and proliferate throughout the beds and borders, the annual poinsettia is practically a week.

Even a long drought does not deter it. It grows, even thrives, in poor, dry soil. But the attractive plant has virtues not shared by the three annuals that we keep trying to discourage by weeding.

It appears unexpectedly during late July, filling in bare spots. And it is naturally spaced six to eight inches apart so rarely needs thinning.

ONE PARTICULAR plant grew up through three inches of broken stone alongside the back steps. It was 27 inches high, two feet wide, and very shapely with more than 50 flowers. The flowers resemble those of the poinsettia except that they are green. The contrast is provided by the soft red on the bracts and the leaves nearest the bracts. More than half of each bract is red, so even a small summer poinsettia (Euphorbia) with a single blossom is quite beautiful.

The stem is upright and hollow, the bright green leaves much like those of the familiar woody pot plant that a dictionary describes thus: "having alternate leaves and cymose inconspicuous green flowers, subtended by bright-colored involucral leaves."

This tender annual, usually finished after the first frost, may only grow wild in zone five and south. Park Seed sells packets containing 100 seeds, but the flower pictured in its catalog is plain and pale compared to the colorful specimens that beautify the Southern and Western borders of the United States.
